BUTT OF SHOTGUN FOUND IN KENNEDY MURDER MYSTERY

Discovery Follows Indictment at Los Angeles of Madelyne Obenchain and Arthur Burch.

THORN REPORTED IN BURCH'S LEFT KNEE

Doctor Also Said to Have Testified That Prisoner's Shoulder Appeared to Be Slightly Discolored.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 12.—The discovery of the butt of a double-barreled shotgun in the Pacific Ocean, near Santa Monica, was announced today by Sheriff's officers investigating the slaying of J. Nelson Kennedy. The butt was found last Saturday by a camper. It was announced. It was lying on the beach after the surf had receded. A reward of $50 for the weapon had been offered by a local newspaper.

Arrangements of the two principals in the case, held in jail today without bonds, is the next formal feature scheduled in the unfolding of developments in the investigation here of the mysterious slaying of Kennedy, a broker, at his summer home in Beverly Glen, Aug. 5.

The two persons indicted by the grand jury yesterday on murder charges are Madelyne Obenchain of Chicago and Los Angeles, Kennedy's purported sweetheart, and Arthur C. Burch, young friend of the Chicago divorcee and college acquaintance of Kennedy. Arrangements are set for Monday.

Investigation Continues.
Meantime, it is understood, investigation on the part of District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine continues.

A doctor who gave Burch a physical examination when he was placed in jail declared later that the wound on the grand jury, it has been made public, that at the time Burch's shoulder appeared to be slightly discolored. Such a discoloration, he implied, might have resulted from the kick-back of a shotgun.

Another bit of evidence announced was that it was said that a thorn had been removed from the left knee of Burch shortly after his incarceration. Weight is being given this, it has been indicated, in view of the fact that the glen in which the death of Kennedy occurred is said to be extremely bushy.

A Janitress' Story.
Officers of a private detective agency working with newspaper men from a local paper, declared, had late last night discovered a new witness in the person of a janitress, in the building in which Kennedy was killed.

Three nights prior to the slaying, according to the story the janitress told investigators this morning, Kennedy left his office in response to a handkerchief wave from a woman in a hotel room across the downtown street. According to the janitress' statement, this was the room, which she later learned, was Burch's. She said her curiosity was aroused and from the street she could see, besides a woman in the room, a man sitting on the bed.

She said that Kennedy returned to his office after 10 or 15 minutes. Her story has been conveyed to the District Attorney.

Mrs. Obenchain, who collapsed following her indictment yesterday, seemed much improved later when word came that her former husband, Ralph Obenchain, Chicago attorney, had left Chicago to be with her during the trial.

A telegram received by Burch in jail also materially brightened him. It was from his father, the Rev. William A. Burch, Illinois minister. It read:

"Arrive Los Angeles Sunday afternoon."

Burch and Mrs. Obenchain saw each other for the first time late yesterday, but they were some distance apart and neither made any effort to talk with the other. Across the width of the prison Mrs. Obenchain stood chatting with her attorney. Burch was in his cell, the bars of which opened into the corridor.

Steadfast in Her Story.
Mrs. Obenchain has held steadfastly to her story in all essentials. She said she had suggested to Kennedy, with whom she had visited a beach, that they stop at his summer cottage and look for a "lucky penny" that she had left under a rock near the house a year before. As she stood at the top of a long flight of steps leading up the hillside to the cottage, she said, she heard a few words of conversation followed by two shots. After the first one Kennedy called "Madelyne, no!" and then when she rushed to where he had fallen he was unconscious, if not dead.

Kennedy's parents gave out interviews the next day in which they said that Mrs. Obenchain had sued their son and pleaded with him to marry her. Mrs. Obenchain, her mother and half-sister, countered with statements that Kennedy had been constant in his efforts to win Mrs. Obenchain's affections; that his love for her had been one of the elements leading to her divorce, and that she constantly had tried to discourage and repulse him. Scores of letters taken from her effects and found in his safe deposit box disclose a lover-like correspondence

FURTHER DELAY EXPECTED IN TAX LAW REVISION

Conference Between Committees on Valuation Provisions in Tariff Measure Holds Up Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Further delay in the revision of the tax law was looked for today by reason of conferences between Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee regarding the American valuation provisions of the Fordney tariff measure. Work on the tax bill was interrupted yesterday by consideration of legislation by the House and some members of the Revision Committee doubted that the bill could be completed tomorrow night, as had been hoped.

Many changes in the bill remain to be decided upon. Representative Bacharach of New Jersey plans to renew his effort to lower the income taxes paid by single and married men having annual net incomes of $4000 or less. Bacharach said he preferred that the rate on such incomes should be reduced from 4 to 3 percent, but indicated that this proposal failed an attempt would be made to increase the exemption by $500. The committee already has agreed tentatively to increase the exemptions to heads of families having dependents by $200 for each dependent.

Administrative features of the new bill understood to have been agreed upon include a provision designed to simplify the process of settlement of back tax claims. The time of settlement would be limited to three years instead of five, except that additional time might be granted by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Effort to Simplify Forms.
Agreement also was said to have been reached to give the secretary authority to call in representatives of taxpayers in an effort to simplify the present tax return forms. These forms are now drawn by Treasury experts and it was said that committee members felt that if these officers had the benefit of the advice of taxpayers familiar with the subject the forms could be improved.

The committee has yet to act on the proposal to substitute a graduated manufacturers' tax on candy, according to cost, in place of the recent flat tax of 5 percent. This matter is now before a subcommittee.

Both the administration and Congress were warned yesterday by Secretary Mellon that the $250,000,000 reduction in estimated departmental expenditures agreed upon at the White House conference last Tuesday for the whole tax law revision program could be accomplished only by the exercise of the most rigid economy.

Mellon Urges Economy.
"To accomplish this reduction," Mellon declared in a letter to Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee, "it will be necessary for the administration, with the assistance of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, to put extending over a term of five or six years, but failed to establish the intention of either side that the other had taken the initiative in the affair, it is said.

The day following the shooting Burch, who was a former classmate of Kennedy at the University of Chicago, left his home suddenly, and his departure caused the proprietor of a small hotel where he had been staying to communicate with the Sheriff. Investigation by the Sheriff developed the statement of the landlord that Burch had asked for a front room, had offered a bonus for a room which would give him a more direct view of the interior of Kennedy's insurance office across Broadway; that he had seen in the room for hours at a stretch for 10 days before the shooting.

Telephone Message.
On the day of the shooting, according to hotel people, Burch received a telephone call in a feminine voice, left a few minutes later, carrying a long package, and returned about midnight.

From this point the Sheriff's deputies learned that Burch, under the name of "Jones," had rented a roadster automobile and had been out with it from 7:30 o'clock to about midnight. Medical evidence afterward established that Kennedy had been shot not later than 9:30 o'clock. Burch was identified by the proprietor of the automobile rental company, and by his night clerk. The roadster was equipped with three tires of unusual pattern. Subsequent investigation showed that the treads of these tires fitted marks left in a small unused room where a car believed by officials to have been the one used by the person who shot Kennedy had been parked.

The shotgun shells, for a 12-gauge weapon, were also found.

The day following the shooting Burch left town. He started East on the return coupon of a round-trip ticket from Chicago, but was placed under arrest at Las Vegas, Nev., and returned in custody at the direction of the Sheriff.

Burch returned $55 to Mrs. Obenchain by mail in a plain envelope without any letter on the day of his departure. She admitted the money was from him and he admitted sending it. They said they had exchanged loans frequently in the past. Burch said that he came here from Evanston because Mrs. Obenchain had summoned him, and she gave out a similar statement.

Visited by Woman.
While Burch was at the hotel, it is said, he was visited by a woman who was said by him to be his "cousin." After his arrest the hotel man said he believed Mrs. Obenchain was forth its utmost efforts to insure economy in every Government department and for Congress to give the most whole-hearted co-operation, not only by avoidance of new expenditures, but also by the limitation or repeal of various outstanding balances and authorizations.

"I cannot too strongly emphasize that the program agreed upon and outlined in this letter depends upon the reductions in expenditure which the administration expects to accomplish, and that the anticipated savings can be effected only by the most consistent and determined efforts to cut expenditures. The estimate of receipts, on the other hand, represents the utmost expected to accrue during the year, particularly in view of the uncertainties resulting from the depression in business and the shrinkage in incomes and profits."

Tax Question Debated.
The tax question got into the House debate yesterday. Democratic leaders attacking the program with charges that only the wealthy would be benefited by most of the proposed changes in the revenue law and that the curtailment in departmental expenditures for this fiscal year agreed upon at the White House conference would prove merely "paper savings."

Republican leaders replied with the declaration that the new law would lift $600,000,000 off the people yearly and launched a counter-attack against the Democrats for leaving over to this administration what were described as unnecessary burdens growing out of the war, including payments to the railroads.

Representative Byrnes, South Carolina, a Democratic member of the Appropriations Committee, in opening the debate, said that Representative Mondell, Wyoming, the Republican leader, in his claim of savings, had made Director Dawes a piker in the economy game."

He added that the Republicans' pretended economy was only a "smoke screen" to deceive the people and they knew that as the end of the fiscal year approached they would have to borrow money to meet expenditures.

"Their hope," he declared, "is that the people will not know it until after the next election. In the meantime and in between time, they will make false claims in savings of expenditures in the effort to fool the people."

Chairman Fordney, in a vigorous reply, said the Democrats had fooled the people for eight years until finally turned out of office and now rowdies and publicans were fooling them by cutting off $600,000,000 of their taxes."

Majority members of the Ways and Means Committee considering the tax bill held only one session yesterday. This was given over largely to a discussion of changes in administrative features of the existing law.

Both prisoners talked freely about everything except the shooting. When asked about any phase of that, Burch invariably replied: "I have nothing to say."

Mrs. Obenchain repeated her story from time to time and talked at great length with the District Attorney Tuesday and Wednesday. It is admitted freely here that no reason has been shown sufficient to account for Burch shooting Kennedy, if he did, as the indictment charges.

Yesterday the young clerk in a local hardware store positively identified Burch as the person to whom he had sold a box of 12-gauge shells a few days before the shooting. He said the purchaser demanded shells loaded with ball and finally accepted those with the largest sized shot. The wound in Kennedy's head was made by large sized shot.

Burch has refused positively to attempt to account for his actions the night of the killing. He intimated in several conversations that he was in Beverly Glen, but made no definite statements of his whereabouts.

The grand jury proceedings that led to the indictments today were relatively brief. The grand jury had heard John D. Kennedy, father of the dead man; T. M. Haley, manager of the hotel where Burch roomed; A. B. Niles, night clerk at the hotel; Dick Parsons, automobile livery man; and Lynn Keith, his night manager; Mrs. M. Louise Wilson, a manicurist and beauty specialist, who was a friend of Mrs. Obenchain; and finally accepted those with the largest sized shot. The wound in Kennedy's head was made by large sized shot.

GOVERNOR'S CONVICT CHAUFFEUR IN SEDALIA

Charles Fromme Goes About City and Fair Grounds Without Any Apparent Restraint.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
SEDALIA, Aug. 12.—Charles Fromme, convict chauffeur for Gov. Hyde, has been here since Sunday, when he drove the Governor here from Jefferson City. He is in civilian clothing and goes about without any apparent restraint, on the State fair grounds and in the city.

As has been told, Fromme is serving a life sentence for the murder of Fred Soller in St. Louis in 1914. He took the place of a paid chauffeur, who cost the State $85 a month.

Since the announcement, a month ago, of the fact that Fromme was serving as the Governor's chauffeur, protests against the arrangement have been made by relatives of Soller. They have urged that Fromme be placed within prison walls to serve his term, pointing out that if a convict is to drive the Governor's car, someone convicted of a lesser offense than murder in the first degree be selected.

Gov. Hyde is the guest of S. L. Highmyer, Representative from Pettit County and a member of the executive committee of the centennial celebration. The Governor said, in reply to a question, that he thought Fromme was sleeping in the basement of the Highmyer house, but he was not certain of this.

Silesian Problem to Go to League of Nations

lied troops for Upper Silesia, the Supreme Council adopted in principle a plan for sending reinforcements after the League of Nations has handed down its decision on the Silesian question. Great Britain, Italy and France each to send its share.

Proceedings in the Silesian Situation Yesterday.
Lloyd George upon receiving the Irish reply by air courier yesterday, afternoon made preparations for his return to London for a cabinet meeting Saturday. The Italian delegates then made an effort to bring about a Silesian settlement at a dinner at which Lloyd George was present, but a member of the Italian delegation informed the Associated Press correspondent after the dinner that developments had reached such a point that there was very little that the Italians or any other mediators could do to alter the situation until after the meeting of the French cabinet.

The British delegation issued the following statement after yesterday's disagreement became known: "The experts have rendered their report, pointing out that certain townships which are inseparably connected. Certain differences of opinion have developed between the British and Italians on one side and the French on the other, and the proposal of the British and Italians now will be considered by the French Government which in due course will indicate its views."

"In the meantime Mr. de Valera's reply has been received and Mr. Lloyd George is returning to London tomorrow morning to deal with it. Lord Curzon will return at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

The correspondents requested Lloyd George's interpretation of the situation. A quarter of an hour after the first statement a reply was received from the British Prime Minister saying that Lord Curzon would remain in Paris with the experts and that Lloyd George would meet M. Briand this morning before leaving. This statement added:

"Lloyd George is going to London to deal with the Irish situation. The French Government understands the position and situation and the necessity for the Premier's returning at once."

The position of the French Government as explained by M. Briand, was substantially: "The experts have presented their conclusions and have said to the Supreme Council, 'Now decide.' We do not decide the same way, as British disagreements have occurred. The experts' new line, which was arrived at by a majority vote, has not been agreed upon by the council and has been referred back to them, and they have replied:

"We shall come back before the council tomorrow if we can reach an unanimous agreement."

The French experts last night studied the Silesian division line proposed by David Lloyd George. According to their calculations this line would save 200,000 Polish votes to Poland, and 270,000 to Germany on the one hand, and 100,000 German votes to Poland and 600,000 German votes to Germany on the other hand, whereas the plebiscite gave 60 per cent of the vote to Germany against 40 per cent to Poland.

Some of the difficulties of the experts, M. Briand said that Konigsgrat, an industrial center, receives its coal from Rybnik and its water from Kattowitz. According to the new line proposed, the latter two towns are cut off from Konigsgrat, which is doomed as a manufacturing town unless allotted the same sovereignty.

Both sides agree that real difficulties exist in the division of the industrial area, every part of which is interdependent and closely related with every other part by systems of electrification, waterworks, light, railways and steel and coke works. Almost any line would separate many thousands of workmen from their place of employment, and it is foreseen that to set up frontier barriers through the region would cause immense embarrassments to the various industries and production.

The greatest uncertainty surrounds the reported visit of the American Ambassador, Harvey, to Lloyd George last evening shortly after the arrival of the Italian delegation. The Ambassador is supposed to have arrived and departed with the utmost secrecy. Repeated efforts at the hotel where the Ambassador is staying to confirm the fact of the visit, either through Harvey or a member of his staff, brought the information from the hotel employee that none of the Ambassador's party would reply to their telephone calls. Harvey and Lloyd George conferred after the dinner given by the Italians, according to Havas News Agency.

ing to his sister, Miss Mariella Coyne, who was in a room next to the porch, when she heard someone come up and begin talking to him. Shortly afterwards she heard three pistol shots and ran to the porch, where she found Father Coyne lying on the floor and saw Stephenson walking away.

Stephenson Went Straight to Jail.
A policeman who heard the shots ran after Stephenson, who went directly to the jail. The officer ordered the minister just as he reached the door of the prison, whereupon Stephenson handed him the gun and surrendered.

It was Father Coyne's custom to sit on his porch each evening after supper and hundreds of persons had grown accustomed to speaking to him as they passed.

Father Coyne was born in Ireland in 1873 and was ordained a priest in Rome in 1896. The same year he went to Mobile, Ala., as a missionary of the cathedral there, where he served until 1899. From 1899 to 1904 he was rector at McGill Institute. He was chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, member of the Dramatic League and the Birmingham Country Club and Roebuck Country Club.

Stephenson was born in Franklin, Ga., in 1871, his wife stated, and had lived in various places in Georgia and Alabama. He had never held a regular pastorate, his family said. He frequented the county courthouse, where he was given the nom de guerre of marrying parson, because of the number of marriage ceremonies he performed in the county building.

Stephenson is not a member of the Southern Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. Robert Echols, presiding elder of the Birmingham District, said today. "He was formerly affiliated with this church, but was never a regularly ordained minister," said Dr. Echols. "About a year ago I became dissatisfied with the report reaching me of the manner in which MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 11.—The evidence of foul play in the death of Maude Gilbert, 23 years old, who was found late yesterday in the Tamiami canal in the Everglades following a report made to the authorities by E. F. White, her companion on an automobile ride the night before, has been found by Sheriff's office, it was reported today.

County Coroner Okell will inquest at 4 o'clock this afternoon but he said this morning that he believed White, who is being held in the county jail without bond, was released after the inquest. Condition of the body indicated, authorities state, that the girl was drowned.

According to the story told by authorities, White, he said, and Gilbert went for a drive over a highway along the canal on Wednesday night. The girl was driving and suddenly the car went into the stream. White said he could find his companion after the accident around in the canal and saw her walking more than two miles from the home of a friend, where he brought him to the city yesterday morning. White then contacted police and deputy sheriff to search for the car. The car was found in the canal, but with various undergarments were the young woman. When the body was found about dusk it was only in a street dress.

White's wife and children left on a trip three hours before the body was found. White's wife, who was with her, said she did not see the body. She was hanging around the house, and when I remembered him, he left the church and went to a friend's house, she said. LARKIN'S BEQUEST
TO RANKEN SCHOOL
HELD UNDER BOND

Probate Court to Decide Pos- session of Legacy Ap- praised at $670,750 Pend- ing Will Contest.

SECURITIES NOW IN HANDS OF EXECUTORS

Whereabouts Disclosed in Deposition Made by John F. Shepley as President of Trust Company.

While the National Ammonia Co. stock of Eli Hillis Larkin, million- aire chemist, who died on April 16, 1910, after 44 years of dual life, which he willed to the David Ranken School of Mechanical Trades, was delivered to the school trustees on March 29 last, in accordance with the bequest, it is now in the possession of Larkin's executors, who are holding it as security on a bond to the probate court. The bequest, if it becomes necessary.

The Probate Court will decide next month if the stock shall be returned to the estate during the pending will contest brought by a nephew and niece of Larkin, as requested by City Counselor Caulfield in his capacity as administrator pendente lite of the estate. John F. Lee, pres- ident of the Board of Trustees of the Ranken School, said today that the stock would not be returned without a court order.

Is Appraised at $670,750. The present possession of the stock, which has an appraised value of $670,750, was disclosed in a deposition made by John F. Shepley, president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., several months ago. The trust company and Charles Cum- mings Collins are co-executors of the Larkin estate.

Collins also made a deposition in the contest, which when filed last Tuesday revealed Larkin's dual life with Harriet Belle Thompson. Shepley's deposition and three others made at the same time have not been filed in court, but a Post-Dispatch reporter was given opportunity today to learn their contents.

O'Neill Ryan, attorney for the plaintiffs in the will contest, asked Shepley in his deposition if his con- science was sought in the distribu- tion of the estate March 29, eight days before the contest was filed, which gave Ranken School possession of the stock.

"Yes," Shepley replied. "It is quite a customary thing to do at the time of a solvent estate before the time of regular distribution. I don't think I knew then of the contemplated con- test."

"Wasn't it rather unusual to make a distribution so close to the time in which a contest could be filed?" Ryan asked.

"Was this filed at the eleventh hour?" Shepley countered.

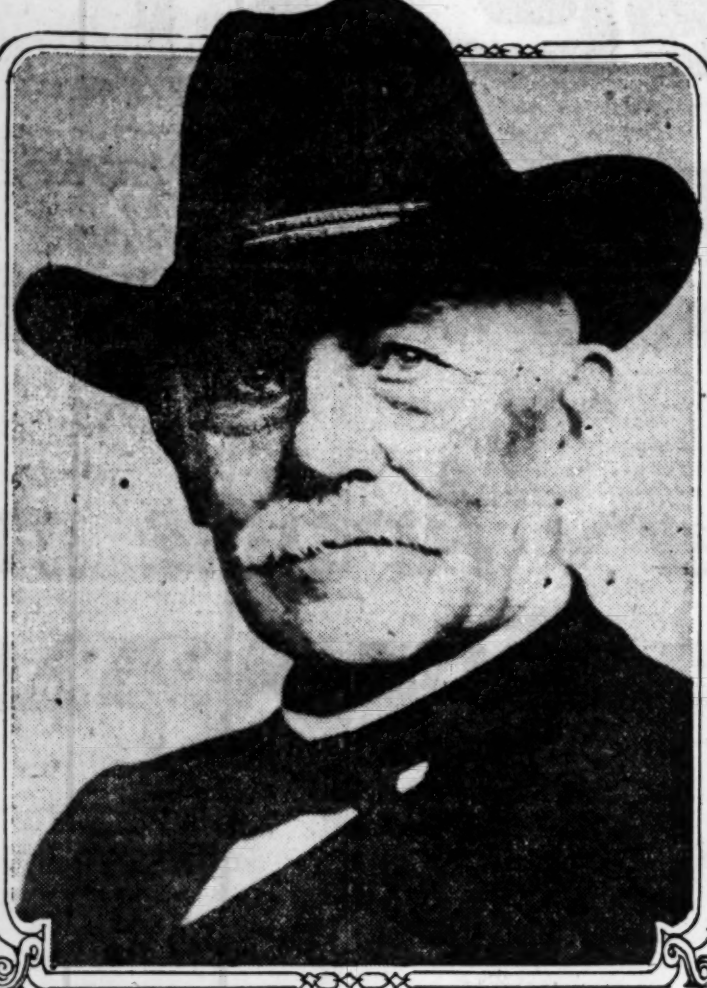

"Within eight days of the contest limitation period (one year after death). Would it not have been usual and wise when you were distributing practically the bulk of the estate (which was about $1,000,000), to have secured a court order?"

"I don't think that is our custom."

"What bond was there from the Ranken School for the stock they received?"

"The usual indemnifying, refund- ing bond, the cost of which they pay back any amount that might be necessary in order to enable us to fulfill the conditions of the will. It is a very probable the stock itself was deposited with us as the security."

It was learned definitely that the executors are holding the stock. The annual dividends amount to about $10,000.

similar to those in the final will. He described the woman to me as single and unmarried.

"Did you ever know who she was?"

"No, I never knew her."

"You knew nothing during his lifetime of the domestic side of his life?"

"No, sir. Only what was necessary. He told me Mrs. Thompson for the 1914 will only in the briefest way."

"He made known to you that she was a woman with whom he had lived for many years?"

"I don't remember whether he said many years."

Shepley said that Larkin and his former partner in the chemical business, Larkin & Shepley, invested in the Columbia, (Ill.) Clay Works and that it was always an undoubted drain on both their estates."

Lon Hocker, attorney for the ex- ecutors and other defendants in the contest, took the deposition of Lewis C. Crawford, superintendent of the Ranken School and a friend of Larkin's.

"I first knew Mr. Larkin in 1913, when John C. Atwood, secretary-treasurer of the National Ammonia Co., suggested we teach refrigeration at Ranken," Gustafson said.

"Atwood arranged for the gift of a refrigerating plant to the school, but kept the name of the donor to himself. Later it developed it was Larkin."

"Larkin was interested in refrig- eration because he was in the am- monia business and he was inter- ested in cooling air for buildings. He thought it feasible to send cool air through houses by means of refrig- eration, perhaps like you have warm air from furnaces."

Those close to the President received their first news of the marriage through press reports from Michigan and after Mr. Harding himself had been informed, the only comment available was that no private word of the event had been received here.

President's Sister Says She Knew Marriage Was Contemplated.
SANTA ANA, Cal., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Charlotte Remsburg of Santa Ana, sister of President Harding, at her residence last night, said she had no comment to make on the marriage of her father, Dr. George T. Harding, to his stenographer and nurse, Miss Alice Severns, other than to say that she had known for some time that the marriage was contemplated by her father. When asked if she had communicated congratulations, she said that so far she had not.

Burglars Leave Fingerprints.
Burglars who ransacked the home of George T. Harding, 3821 McDonald avenue, last night stole $73 and jewelry valued at $150 and left behind a number of fingerprints on windows.

Other burglaries reported were in the drug store of Arthur Feder, 5200 North Twentieth street, where nar- cotics, cigars and drugs valued at $200, and $60 from the cash regis- ter were taken; St. Louis Typewriter Exchange, 211 North Tenth street, one machine and a revolver; and the home of Albert Hoffman, 1274 Wag- ner terrace, where the thieves were frightened away by neighbors.

Detectives riding about the city in automobiles last night made 13 arrests at Grand avenue and Delmar boulevard, Grand and Easton avenues and Ninth and Market streets.

Shirer was sentenced to life im- prisonment and went to the Jef- ferson City penitentiary without appeal- ing. Carroll was sentenced to hang with Jaco and the State Supreme Court affirmed his sentence and that of Jaco, but ordered the sentences reported last night because the trial court had ordered them hanged "jointly." Recently Gov. Hyde re- voked Carroll for 30 days, until Sept. 12, for an inquiry as to his san- ity.

Sheriff Gehlert, then a deputy, as- sisted Sheriff Emil Puchta to hang Arthur Duestrow of St. Louis on the same spot prepared for Jaco, 25 years ago. In a trial here on charge of the murder of his wife and child in their home at Compton and Copelin avenues, St. Louis.

George Collins and William Ru- dolph, who robbed the Bank of Union on Dec. 26, 1902, and after- ward killed Charles Schumacher of Chicago, a Pinkerton detective on their trail, also were hanged here. Gehlert assisted Sheriff Thomas B. Burch to hang Collins, and then, becoming Sheriff, hanged Rudolph. He also assisted in a legal hang- ing at St. Charles. He is Sheriff of Franklin County now for the third time.

The first legal hanging in Missouri after the restoration of capital pun- ishment was in Poplar Bluff March 27, 1920, when Adam Jackson, a ne- gro, 39 years old, was executed for an attack on a white woman.

Man Found Dead on Train.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The body of a man, identified by the local police as Louis Webb, 61 years old, of New Rochelle, N. Y., was found last night in a car on a Pennsylvania Railroad train arriving here. Evidence showed that he had commit- ted suicide, the police said. Papers found on the body and in the bag- gage carried by the man referred to Webb having been arrested in New Rochelle in 1918, under the espionage act. Newspaper clippings relat- ing to the loss of the Lusitania and other outstanding incidents of the war also were found.

83RD KROGER STORE
ROBBERY IS REPORTED

Manager of Branch at 2826 St. Louis Avenue Tells of Sixth Holdup of Place.

The eighty-third Kroger store robbery since August, 1919, and the sixth one of the same store was re- ported at 4:30 yesterday afternoon when two men, one armed with a revolver, were said to have taken $20 from the store at 2826 St. Louis ave- nue. One of them guarded Perry Ward of 2236 Cass avenue, manager, in a rear room, while the other one took the money from the cash reg- ister. Ward was in charge when the previous robberies occurred also.

Service Car Driver Reports Second Theft of His Automobile.
For the second time in two years Jacob Sawyer of 3926A Shenandoah avenue, a service car driver, report- ed the theft of his car by men whose actions on the two occasions were similar. He told police that a man hired him at Ninth and Washington avenues at 8 p. m. to drive to the 5100 block of Natural Bridge ave- nue. Arriving there, the man pressed a revolver to Sawyer's side and told him to go on. At Goodfellow avenue they picked up a young man who took the wheel, while Sawyer was made to lie in the tonneau. On the Brown road, a mile north of Natural Bridge road, St. Louis County, the men tied Sawyer to a road machine alongside the road, took $10 from him and left him. He worked loose and went to police headquarters. The machine was valued at $2000.

On Aug. 27, 1919, Sawyer reported that two men took his machine away from him in Webster Groves and tied him at Rock Hill road and Col- lege avenue, taking $27.35. These men were caught at Rockport, Ind., and charged with highway robbery. The machine was recovered.

Philip Gardner, 3232 North Tenth street, reported that two men stopped him in the hallway of an apartment house at 858 Hamilton avenue last night, hit him on the head and took $250 from him. Later he said the money belonged to a Knights of Pythias lodge of which he is treas- urer.

P. H. Vogen, who lives in the rear of his candy store, 1008 Franklin avenue, saw a man at a rear sky- light about midnight and fired three shots in his direction. Policemen saw a negro running after they heard the shots. They fired several shots at him and a private watch- man caught him at Eleventh street and Lucas avenue. He denied hav- ing been at the store and said he only ran because he heard shots.

ST. LOUISANS PARADE AT FAIR CELEBRATION

First Regiment Meets Party of 275 Which Goes to Sedalia on Special Train.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
SEDALIA, Mo., Aug. 12.—This was St. Louis day at the Missouri Centennial celebration at the State Fair, and it was enlivened by the arrival at noon of the "Red Lemonade Special" from St. Louis, bring- ing about 275 persons.

The train was switched to the fair grounds, where it was met by the First Regiment, National Guard of Missouri and a considerable number of St. Louisans who came up last night, including Mayor Kiel, and by most of the day's visitors at the celebration.

The St. Louisans, gaily decorated and carrying placards, paraded, headed by the St. Louis policemen who are on duty here during the fair, by Mayor Kiel, President Carter of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd and Senator Carter.

The parade ended at Liberty Hall, where dinner was served, with John S. Leahy of St. Louis as toastmaster and the following speakers: Presi- dent Carter, Senator Spencer, Gov. Hyde, Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd, Mayor Kiel, President Roy Rucker of the Sedalia Chamber of Com- merce, Mayor Hatton of Sedalia and Secretary M. V. Carroll of the Se- dalia Chamber of Commerce.

Train With St. Louis Crowd De- parted at 7:05 Today.
The "Red Lemonade Special," car- rying St. Louisans to the Missouri Centennial celebration at Sedalia, left Union Station at 7:05 o'clock this morning over the Missouri Pacific with a passenger list of about 275, including a number of women and some children.

President Carter of the Chamber of Commerce and Senator Spencer boarded the train at the station. The train had seven coaches. A placard on the rear platform pro- claimed it the "Red Lemonade Spe- cial." In addition to red lemonade, vaudeville was provided for enter- tainment en route. Paper caps, bal- loons, pennants and noise-makers were distributed on the train. P. V. Bunn, general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and W. B. Welschberger, assistant general sec- retary, were in charge of the train.

A miniature edition of "Greater St. Louis," official organ of the Cham- ber of Commerce, was issued on the train.

Mayor Kiel went to Sedalia last night for the celebration of St. Louis day.

$1500 DAMAGE BY FIRE
TO LAUNDRY BUILDING
Fire of undetermined origin, dis- covered at 4 o'clock this morning, damaged the two-story brick build- ing of the Munger Laundry Co., at 2308 Washington avenue. It ap- peared to have started in the wash- room on the first floor. The police estimated the damage to the build- ing at $1500.

James Munger, vice president of the firm, said he could not make an estimate. "Wet wash" was done at the laundry. Most of the week's work had been cleared. The work will be done at another laundry owned by the firm pending repairs. Thirty-five girls and 15 men are em- ployed.

FILMS OF CARUSO FUNERAL
RUSHED TO U. S. ON LINER
Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
ROME, Aug. 12.—Owing to a mis- hap New Yorkers will be able to see films representing Caruso's deathbed, the lying-in state and the wonder- ful funeral procession several days before the time fixed. This is be- cause the steamer President Wilson, which is carrying the films, wire- less telegraphed that the films aboard were quite useless owing to the fact that they were packed be- fore being properly dried.

American film agents here toured all the shipping firms, offering any money for the quick transport of a new set of Caruso films. Only a Cun- ard liner was available to take up the offer, and by rushing the films by special courier across Italy and France to Cherbourg, which will catch the steamer Aberdeen, which delays its sailing for six hours and reaches New York several days before the President Wilson.

BOY TELLS THRILLING
YARNS OF KIDNAPING

Dominic Randazzo, 10, Missing Since July 29, Relates Several Versions of Experiences.

Dominic Randazzo, 10 years old, of 805 Carr street, small for his age and precocious, sat in the Captain's office at the Carr Street Police Station yesterday afternoon, surrounded by patrolmen, detectives, newspaper reporters and photographers, and related in a highly entertaining and interesting manner how he had been "kidnaped."

"It was a de luxe affair that he narrated. He left home in the afternoon of July 29 and re- turned at 9 p. m. Wednesday. Mean- time his father, Pietro Randazzo, a saloonkeeper, had reported him missing."

"I was playing at Eighth and Bid- die streets with Frank Campinelli, 12 years old, when two men drove up in a gray Hudson limousine. He said Dominic. "They said we were nice little boys and bought us an ice cream cone. Then they asked us to have a ride. We got into the li- mousine and one of the men threw a cloth over my head."

Crossed Bridge Over River.
"We rode for a long time until we came to a bridge and then we crossed a river. We were taken to a farm house where there was an Italian man and a boy and we were given supper. That night we were taken to a room on the second floor and the man locked the door. He told us to be quiet."

"The next day the man let us go fishing. His boy went along. Frank and I ran away, but the boy came after us and caught us just as we reached a railroad trestle. That day we had chicken and hot corn bread for dinner."

"After that we went fishing every day. We took our meals with the man and the boy. Wednesday af- ternoon, between 1 and 2 o'clock, Frank and I ran away again. We were running along the road when we saw a motor truck loaded with waste paper. We hopped on the back. When we came to a bridge the driver saw us. Frank hopped off, I stayed on. The driver asked me where I was going and I told him I wanted to get home. He asked me where I lived and he brought me to the police station. I knew the way home from the station here—it is only two blocks away—and I walked the rest of the distance."

"Where you mistreated while you were away?" asked one of the de- tectives.

Says Treatment Was "Nice."
"No, I was treated nice," was the reply. "Only I was locked in a room every night."

The boy's father denied having re- ceived a "Black Hand" letter de- manding $25,000 ransom, as was stated in the Star yesterday.

"That story in the paper was the first I ever heard of a 'Black Hand' letter," said Randazzo. "I don't know where that information came from. I never said I had received a letter. The boy ran away and he is telling that story about being kid- naped so that he will not get a licking. He is a smart boy."

Lieut. Thomas Conley, night com- mander of the Carr Street District, said that Pietro Randazzo reported the boy's disappearance to him and had called at the police station every night to see if any trace of the boy had been found and had never said anything to him about a "kidnaping" or "Black Hand" threats.

Tells Various Stories.
As Dominic repeated his story to reporters and detectives he gave assorted versions. At one time he stated the Campinelli boy was not with him. In another version he said that the "kidnapers" placed a handkerchief over his face. He said that he cried for help and that although a gang of laborers repair- ing the street nearby looked at him they did not interfere. At another time he said that he was in the custody of a man and a woman. He was quite sure of one thing, how- ever, and that was that the "kid- napers" treated him "fine."

The police have had no report of the disappearance of Frank Campinelli.

At 411 East Broadway, East St. Louis, where a family of man and wife and son and daughter named Campinelli resides in a tenement no one was at home today. Neighbors said two Italians visited the house yesterday in a St. Louis automobile.

MAN IN LETTER TELLS POLICE
HE WILL BECOME CRIMINAL

Communication Bears Name of For- mer Soldier Who Flew From City Sanitarium Last October.
Walter A. Westermeyer, 24 years old, son of John Westermeyer, of 4652 Tower Grove place, is being sought in Decatur, Ill., at the request of the police here, following receipt of a letter signed with his name yester- day by Capt. Gaffney of the Mag- nolia Avenue Police District.

The writer signed himself "Walter Westermeyer," and said in part: "I was injured in the army and they tried to put me away for life. I am free now. Beginning Thursday, I become a criminal." The letter also contained threats against Judges and others.

Investigating the letter, the police learned Westermeyer had been in- jured in the army and had been con- fined in the City Sanitarium here. Last summer he was paroled and eloped subsequently to Alton, Ill., and married Miss Florence Gill of 4928 Gresham avenue. The father later had him recommitted to the in- stitution, from which he disappeared Oct. 10 last, when he was allowed the privilege of the yard to talk to his wife. The wife at the time re- ported he had left her seated on a bench, saying he wanted to go to his room for a handkerchief. She said she had not seen him since.

Voting on Tax Reduction.
A special election is being held in University City today to determine whether the tax rate shall remain at 44 cents on a valuation of $100 or be lowered to 44 cents. A bill was passed by the last Legislature providing that yearly revenue from taxation should not be increased more than 10 per cent. University City would have more than a 10 per cent increase if the rate remained at 50 cents. At that rate, however, the year's revenue would amount to about $67,000, while the budget comes to within $2000 of the amount.

W. M. HORTON, FORMER CITY OFFICIAL, DEAD

Was Member of City Council 12 Years and Active in Real Estate Business.

William M. Horton, who served 12 years in the St. Louis City Council, said to have been longer than any other member ever served, who was once a candidate for Congress and who developed a number of the outlying subdivisions as a real estate agent, died yesterday at his home, 5901 Horton place, from a stroke of apoplexy. He was 67 years old.

He had been in poor health for several years and had been retired from active business for ten years. Exhaustion from a trip to Joplin, Mo., from which he returned Sunday morning, it is thought, may have contributed to the result.

He was born in Cincinnati, but had lived in St. Louis since 1859. After leaving school he was in the stove manufacturing business with his father, Benjamin Horton, for seven years, and then went into real estate in 1883. He developed Horton place, which he named for his father; Reber place, Bartmer place and Thornby place.

He served three terms in the City Council, 1889 to 1893, 1895 to 1899 and 1899 to 1903, and was vice president of the body most of the time. He ran for Congress on the Republican ticket against James Butler. He was defeated and contested, but was not seated. He was a member of the State Republican Committee two terms.

He is survived by his wife and four children, Mrs. J. Edward Cowan of Webster Groves, Mrs. K. E. Weller of Denver, Miss Eleanor Horton, at home, and the Rev. Benjamin Horton of Philadelphia. A son, Winston Horton, died when en route to France for service in the war. The funeral will be Saturday at 1:10 p. m. from the residence to Bellefontaine cemetery.

INJURED GIRL IDENTIFIED AS A TELEPHONE OPERATOR

Cecelia Riley, 16, Thrown From Motor Cycle on Olive Street Road, Still Unconscious.

The girl taken to St. Luke's Hospital early yesterday, unconscious and suffering from a fractured skull after being thrown from a motor cycle driven by Millage Hawthorne of 2840 Lindell boulevard, on the Olive Street road was identified by relatives last night as Miss Cecelia Riley, 16 years old, of 6438 Wells avenue, a telephone operator. She was reported in a critical condition today and still unconscious.

Harry Buddie, 24 years old, of 2838 Eads avenue, suffered a fractured arm and scalp wounds at 10 p. m. yesterday when thrown from a motor cycle in collision with an automobile driven by Patrolman Harry Haines, 2034A Rutger street, at Lafayette and California avenues. He was taken to the city hospital.

Oscar Sussen, 28, of 5217 North Market street, a chauffeur, suffered a fractured arm and leg and internal injuries when thrown from his motor cycle in collision with an automobile driven by Adolph Ruckart, 3314 Lempi avenue, at Compton and Franklin avenues, at 4 p. m. He was taken to the Baptist Hospital.

Henry Henze of 4373A Delmar boulevard, who was on the motor cycle with Sussen, was not hurt.

Miss Mildred Freese, 28, of 3234 South Grand avenue, was cut on the face and head yesterday afternoon when an automobile driven by her father, Elisha C. Freese, was struck by an automobile driven by Frank Bandera of 2700 Chouteau avenue at Jefferson and Chouteau avenues.

IMMUNITY OFFERED TO LESSER LIQUOR OFFENDERS

County Prosecutor Adopts Suggestions of Attorney-General in His Investigation.

Prosecuting Attorney Mueller of St. Louis County said today that he had replied to the letter made public yesterday by Attorney-General Barrett relating to the liquor investigation in the county.

"Immunity will certainly be offered in accordance with the Attorney-General's suggestions, to any lesser offender who will give real information of men 'higher up,'" the Prosecuting Attorney said. "That procedure is followed in other cases, and there is no reason why it should not be followed in this."

"My experience in the prosecution of moonshiners, however, would indicate that they are less afraid of any penalty imposed by the State than of physical violence from their employers. I have yet to meet the Italian who would divulge more regarding the actual proprietor of a still than that he was hired by 'some man.'"

"Any directions of the Attorney-General will be adhered to, and no possibility will be overlooked for plumbing the liquor situation to the bottom. There is truth in the statement that 'we have but scratched the surface in St. Louis County.' But we're not through scratching."

WOMAN IS SUED FOR $60,300

Claims Against Mrs. I. B. Hopkins Result of Auto Collision.

Six suits for damages for a total of $60,300 were filed in the Circuit Court against Mrs. I. B. Hopkins. It is alleged she permitted her automobile to get in the way of a machine occupied by Gerald T. and Jeanette Garvey, Joseph R. and Lois Daigler, Beulah Ruth and Charles F. Hahne at Twenty-first and Locust streets, June 9.

The plaintiffs state that they were driving south and Mrs. Hopkins was driving west and she drove in front of their machine, causing it to collide with hers. All except Hahne sue for $12,000 each for bruises and shock. Hahne wants $300 for damage to his automobile.

Will Let $500,000 in Liquor Be Dumped Into Chicago River.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Liquor valued at $500,000, ranging from moonshine to the rarest champagne, will soon be fed to the fishes in the Chicago River. Permission to dump the liquor and destroy stills and dispose of automobiles seized in liquor raids was granted yesterday by Federal Judge K. M. Landis.

President of Czechoslovakia Home. By the Associated Press. PRAGUE, Aug. 12.—Prof. T. G. Masaryk, President of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, returned here yesterday from Capri, where he had been convalescing for three and a half months from a serious illness. He will reside at the presidential country seat near Prague. Richard Crane, the American minister, was among the members of the diplomatic corps who greeted President Masaryk.

$57,000 Worth of Securities Missing. Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Nonnegotiable securities valued at $57,000 disappeared yesterday while a stock broker for Drayton, Pennington & Colvert, brokers, of 115 Broadway, was on his way to his company's office with them. The loss was reported to police headquarters last night by Franklin I. Mallory, one of the executive officers of the brokerage concern.

Aid for Prisoner's Wife Sought.

The police have appealed for aid to relieve the condition of Mrs. Margaret Eppeheimer of 220A Clinton street, whose husband, Frank, is in the city jail awaiting trial. Mrs. Eppeheimer became a mother Wednesday, and late that night the baby died and was taken to the morgue. Mrs. Eppeheimer appealed to the city to bury the body, saying she could not even buy food for herself.

MOVE IN HAVANA TO BAR MEN CLERKS IN WOMEN'S WEAR SHOPS

Amendment to Immigration Law Approved by Senate, Must Be Passed by Deputies.

By the Associated Press. HAVANA, Aug. 12.—Men who have been employed as clerks in Cuban dry goods stores would be forced to seek some other means of making a livelihood if an amendment to the immigration law adopted by the Senate yesterday receives approval in the Chamber of Deputies. The amendment provided that men may not be employed as clerks in shops devoted to the sale of women's articles of apparel.

How Yeast Vitamin Tablets Put Flesh on Thin Folks

Strengthen The Nerves and Invigorate The Body—Easy and Economical To Take—Results Surprisingly Quick.

If you want to put some firm, healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power, clear the skin and complexion and look and feel 100 per cent better, simply try taking two highly concentrated yeast-vitamins, as well as the two other still more important vitamins (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C), and in now being used by thousands. It positively will not upset the stomach or cause gas, but on the contrary is a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Complete satisfaction absolutely guaranteed or the trial cost you nothing. So give it a try. Remember the name "VI-TA-MON"—there is nothing else like it. Get it at all good drug stores such as Enderle's six stores, Johnson Bros., J. & D. B. E. E. Modier, A. W. Paisley's, Wolf-Wolfe, Huger's two stores.

ADVERTISING. Anyone Now Can Have Pretty Curls and Waves. Hair tortured with the hot curling iron is bound to become dry, harsh and brittle, as so many know from sad experience. It's far more sensible to use the simple simerline method, which can do no harm and which produces a curliness much prettier and more natural in appearance. And the effect lasts much longer, particularly in hot, moist or windy weather. Simerline is also a fine dressing for the hair, preserving its texture and health, keeping it delightfully soft and glossy. Liquid simerline is not sticky or greasy, and it won't stain or break hair or scalp. Get a few ounces from the drugist, pour a little into a saucer and with a clean toothbrush apply evenly to the hair, using before doing it up. The added glory to your "crowning glory" will be quite remarkable.

MAN LIVING NEXT DOOR TO HUGE STILL ARRESTED

Police Find Plant of 1000 Gallons Daily Capacity and 50,000 Gallons of Mash at 3013 Caroline.
Joseph Orlando was arrested at his home, 3013 Caroline street, last night, several hours after police-men, acting on anonymous information, had found a large still in operation in a one-story building at 3013 Caroline street, next door.
The still was said by policemen to be of 1000 gallons' daily capacity, and with it was a complete "moon-shining" outfit, including a vat containing 50,000 gallons of raisin mash. In an automobile owned by Orlando in a garage back of 3013 they found six five-gallon cans of "moonshine" whiskey.
Orlando, when arrested, said he did not know anything about the still next door to his home. He said he kept his automobile in a garage back of 3013, but did not know how the cans of whiskey came to be in the machine.

$70,000 IN SUBSCRIPTIONS EXPECTED FOR OPERA OF 1922

Subscriptions for next year's season of municipal opera have reached $12,000 and it is expected that the total before the opening of the season next spring will be $70,000.
Max Koenigsberg, one of the sponsors of the opera, made these figures public at a Kiwanis Club meeting at the American Annex Hotel yesterday. Last season's subscriptions up to the opening date were $46,000.
Koenigsberg said the personnel of the opera force for the season just closed consisted of 112 persons, including 100 Boy Scouts, who acted as ushers. There were nine principals and a chorus of 84 in the casts, 40 per cent of the chorus singers being St. Louisans.

ENGLISH ENTRY IN MOTORBOAT RACES SAID TO MAKE 80 MILES

By the Associated Press.
SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 12.—The English motor boat Maple Leaf VII, challenger for the international cup to be raced for off Detroit early in September, has attained a speed of 80 miles an hour in trials in the Solent, it was announced here today. This is said to be a world's record.

The world's record has been held by the motor boat Miss America, owned by G. A. Wood at Detroit, which attained a speed of 77.85 miles an hour in trials in the Lake George one-mile championship trophy competition held at Detroit last September. The Maple Leaf VII arrived in New York by steamer yesterday, ready for shipment to Detroit.

SUIT TO TEST NEW BAKERY LAW

Julius Komen, owner of a bakery at 1400 Biddle street, applied to the Circuit Court yesterday for an injunction restraining enforcement of the new law, which prohibits the sale of bakery products on Sundays after 9 a. m., and which becomes effective Sunday. A temporary restraining order was issued and will be argued Aug. 25. Komen, in his petition, states that he is a member of the Orthodox Jewish faith, which prohibits work from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday and that all of his customers are members of that faith.
The new ordinance prohibits only the sale of bakery products and does not prohibit the sale of other goods, such as milk, candy or ice cream, after 9 a. m.

GERMANY HAS PAID SEVEN NOTES

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Aug. 12.—The Reparations Commission announced that Germany, since the beginning of July, has paid 250,000,000 gold marks to the commission, thus allowing Germany to redeem five of the $20,000,000 notes issued in execution of article 5 of the schedule of payments. This brings the total notes redeemed up to seven.

The cash in the commission's hands, after the redemption of the seven notes, with further payments announced by Germany for Aug. 15, will permit the redemption of two additional notes.

We are getting back to where we measure pretty closely the relative value of the things for which we pay out our good money. Losse custom tailoring has a thirty-five year history. Losse clothes were good value back before the early nineties. They were good value (and good clothes, too) through the wartime inflation period. And today we don't believe you can buy clothes service below the price of Losse custom tailored clothes.

Hunger, The Third Horseman, Rides Unchecked In Russia

Not since the great plagues scourged the Egypt of the Pharaohs has any nation suffered such horrors as are reported from Russia, we read in a Berlin dispatch to the New York Tribune. All the wells and streams in the Volga region have dried up; whole villages are in flight, and "the vast steppes of Russia will be strewn with the bodies of men, women, and children unless the world comes to their aid." Europe, continues this writer, "may witness a titanic invasion by Russian hordes such as has not occurred since the advance of the Mongols across the Russian steppes."

The Poles are naturally alarmed. One well-informed and highly educated Pole told a Chicago Tribune correspondent in Warsaw that "Poland is in mortal danger of another Russian invasion—an invasion by a mass of starving humanity which will sweep over the border like a pack of hungry wolves invading a lonely village in winter," and the editor of a Polish daily in New York City is not unnaturally moved by the reports of "exhausted, hungry masses, wandering in despair towards an unknown destination, marking their path by the corpses of their children, of their women and old people." The Kansas City Star calls the famine "the crowning indictment of Bolshevism."

If you would be informed on the actual conditions in Russia today you will do well to read THE LITERARY DIGEST for August 13th, the leading article in which presents a vivid picture of that stricken country.

WOMAN AND MAN BEING SOUGHT IN MURDER OF PRIEST

Former Named by W. A. Hightower as Having Given Him Information Which Led Him to Grave.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—Search is being made today for two characters, a woman and a man, in the drama that reached its climax with the exhuming of the body of the Rev. Father Patrick Healin, Catholic priest, from a shallow grave on the desolate coast south of San Francisco Tuesday night. These characters are the man as yet unnamed, but whom police officers say was connected with the slaying, and Dolly Mason, mentioned by William A. Hightower as having given him information on which he based his successful search for the priest's body.
Police officers frankly say they believe that in Hightower, in custody in the Hall of Justice here they have the major character in the affair and indicated that filing of formal charges of murder against him was so overshadowed by other developments as to be but a routine matter. Prisoners went to Archbishop.
Hightower, according to Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson, when asked why he did not first go to the police with his information about the body instead of to the residence of Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, replied that he was out after the reward that had been offered and that he believed if he went first to the police they and not he would get the money.
Capt. Matheson said that he did not believe that Hightower was the man who called for Father Healin and took him away under pretense that he was to visit a "dying man."
"We expect to locate that man and have him under arrest before Friday night," he said.
An anonymous letter was received by Archbishop Hanna last night from Los Angeles informing him that a search "at a Mission street hotel near Sixth" would result in locating the murderer of Father Healin. This letter was at once turned over to the police by the Archbishop.
Hightower's Story.
Evidence which prompted the authorities to accuse Hightower of the slaying included the following:
Hightower admitted that he was in Colma, the home of Father Healin, about the time the priest disappeared.
He evidenced a strange familiarity with the site of the grave.
He said he was out of work and in need of money.
Hightower's story was that he chanced upon Dolly Mason, who, he said, is of the underworld, on the streets here Saturday. He had known her before, he said. She told him then, he said, that a forger, a bootlegger, had revealed a large amount of money to her and a pistol, with which he said he killed a man. He said the body of a slain man was in one of the caves of the sand cliffs near Salda Beach, 20 miles south of here. It was guarded by a man kneeling and frying flap-jacks, he told her, Hightower said.
This recalled, said Hightower, an advertising sign at this lonely beach spot, rarely frequented, and on Sunday he drove down, according to his story and found the body. He took a piece of bloody burlap and some cartridge shells back to his room, he said.
Three nights later, Wednesday night, he went to the residence of Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, head of the Catholic Diocese here, to tell of his finding. The Archbishop was busy, and Hightower told of it to a newspaper reporter, who informed the chief of police.
Funeral services for Father Healin will be held here Saturday.

SECOND INDICTMENT AGAINST WORTHINGTON TO BE SOUGHT

Alleged Head of Mail Theft Ring to Be Charged With Receiving Stolen Property.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—A second indictment of John W. Worthington, alleged head of a mail theft ring, is to be asked today of the county grand jury on a charge of receiving stolen property. State's Attorneys said.
He has already been indicted with more than a score of others by the Federal grand jury as the head of the alleged band of postal thieves and by the county grand jury for receiving stolen property.
It was intimated that Worthington will be charged with receiving $30,000 worth of securities which were stolen from a Chicago bank more than a year ago. The securities were later recovered in another local bank in a safety deposit box that authorities claim Worthington owned.

SUES FOR NAME FOR HER CHILD

The first suit to be filed here under a new law passed by the last Legislature, and effective June 21 last, was entered in the Circuit Court yesterday by Josephine Gray of Sparta, Ill., who names George H. Field, consulting accountant in the Arcade Building, as father of her child, Betty Gene, and asks that the infant be declared Field's legitimate daughter.
The plaintiff, who gives her age as 21, filed a damage suit against Field Wednesday, asking for $25,000. Field denied her charge and said he was prepared to defend the case.

Woodruff's Name Incorrectly Used. It was incorrectly stated, in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, in connection with the acquittal of George Brandhorst of 5342 Shaw avenue of complicity in the robbery of Charles Kaufman, proprietor of a confectionery at 2601 Mackland avenue, that Wesley Woodruff is still to be tried. The Woodruff in the case is Leslie Woodruff of 5637 Magnolia avenue. He is not a defendant, but a witness. He drove the robbers in a service automobile, but did not know that they were robbers.

BOAT OFF U. S. COAST SELLS LIQUOR FREELY

Former Fisherman, Off Martha's Vineyard, Offers Scotch From "Drink to Barrel."

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 12.—Twenty-odd miles off in the Atlantic from the shore of Martha's Vineyard island a converted Gloucester fisherman, under British flag, is busily selling liquor to all visitors. She is the Arethusa, and according to the legend on her stern she sails from Nassau, N. F. She is said to have come up the coast about the time of the New York Yacht Club cruise late in July. At any rate, she has been selling freely for days to yachtsmen, who discovered her on sword-fishing trips, and made return voyages to run heavy cargoes ashore.

Yesterday when a reporter went out to the Arethusa on a fishing boat, his craft had to heave to and wait for customers in two boats ahead to be served before he could get close enough to jump into a dory and pull over. As he left two more boats were drawing near and there was another off on the horizon.

"How's the chances of getting a drink?" was the reporter's opening remark as he clambered over the rail. "What'll you have?" answered a member of the crew lounging forward.

Scotch in Any Quantity. "Got any whisky—good Irish whisky—aboard?"

"Sure. How much?" The reporter asked for four quarts and learned that the salesman would not break a case of Irish whisky. He would sell Scotch in any quantity. "Anything from a drink to a barrelful," the sailor assured his customer, taking him below where cases of wet goods towered on all sides. The reporter found the cargo carefully classified. In one section was champagne. Others held brandy, various whiskeys and cognac. His purchase was two bottles of Calvert whisky, distilled, bottled and bonded, according to label, in Baltimore, and stamped on the bond stamp "1912, 1917," and two bottles of Cedar Brook, also an American whisky. He paid $20 for the lot. Scotch was said to be bringing $75 a case, champagne $100.

Room Filled With Whisky. While the purchase was being arranged the reporter studied the compartment in which he stood. It was the whisky room, he learned. It was perhaps 20 feet deep and 12 feet high, with a large closet opening from it. The place was packed full of whisky, sewed up in gunny sacks. When the sailor bartender ripped open one of the sacks the visitor counted five bottles.

All of the men talked freely of everything but themselves. The Arethusa, they said, expected to stay where she was until the cargo was disposed of; he remarked that the location was "an excellent one." The Arethusa drifts east on one tide, west on another. Her sails are up, but out of the wind, and only dighted when the craft gets off position. She apparently keeps no lookout. Perhaps she doesn't need to, for Harold D. Wilson, chief prohibition enforcement agent for the Massachusetts district, has said he was powerless to touch her, although he hoped to stop boats from bringing the cargo ashore.

YOUTH TARRED AND FEATHERED

Seized by Masked Men in Oklahoma Town and Carried Away in Auto. By the Associated Press.

EL RENO, Okla., Aug. 12.—Masked men last night took L. P. Matthews, 20 year old mail clerk of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad from his home here, blindfolded him, drove several miles out of town and returned soon after, dumping Matthews into the street with a coat of tar and feathers. He and his sister, two other men and two girls were arrested last Saturday on a charge of disorderly conduct, later forfeiting their bonds.

Held After Hiding Bottle. William Norden, 35 years old, proprietor of a saloon at 2144 Chouteau avenue, was arrested at 5 p. m. yesterday, when a policeman reported having seen Norden walk into a shed in the rear of the saloon and hide a half-pint bottle of what the police say is whisky, which he took from his hip pocket.

"When my little girl was four months old eczema broke out on her face and neck in small blisters. Her skin was very sore and red. Later the breaking out developed into sore eruptions. She was cross and could not sleep day or night.

"The trouble lasted about six weeks before I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using two cakes of Soap and one and a half boxes of Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Edna Pottor, Oregon, Ohio.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum usually prevents skin troubles. Sample each free by mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. K, Malden, Mass." or "Cuticura, Dept. K, Portland, Me." Cuticura Soap shaves without soap.

POLITICS INSTITUTE ATTENDED BY MANY EMINENT SCHOLARS

Conference at Williams College Serious Effort at Intensive Study and Debate on Public Questions.

VERSAILLES TREATY FRANKLY DISCUSSED

Conclusions That Are Reached Expected to Have Bearing on America's Future International Relations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 12.—More than 100 of America's distinguished university professors, lawyers, publicists, diplomats, editors and financiers, all vastly interested in international problems, are rounding out the second week of their "return to college" here as members of the Institute of Politics. Acquaintance have been so generally established that the "students"—many of them gray-bearded and stoop-shouldered—are reverting to the customs of their freshman days and conferring names upon one another.

It is a common sight now to see the ordinarily dignified authorities on international relationships strolling the campus of Williams College and greeting one another by first names or calling a "good morning" from their college dormitory windows. Little knots of "students" whose aggregate ages might total 200 years gather in the shade of the fine old elms, conferring on special "courses" and assignments and discussing the "classes."

Serious Intensive Effort. Without doubt, one of the most extraordinary assemblages ever called together at any institution of learning, the Institute of Politics, founded by Prof. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, has proved itself not a few weeks' convention merely for desultory conference. It really constitutes a serious effort at intensive study and debate on questions of large public importance.

Each afternoon or evening witness a lecture in Grace Hall by one or another of the distinguished visitors from the four quarters of the globe, whose presence lends to the "Institute" its distinctly international atmosphere. Aside from the 500 or so summer residents hereabouts who make up the major portion of the audience, there are the members of the Institute jotting down salient points in their note books for reference and contemplation later.

Then there are the so-called "round table" conferences. The 100 or more members of the Institute—lawyers, publicists, professors and others—divide themselves into groups of 25 or so. At stated hours during the day they discuss with the utmost freedom behind closed doors virtually every problem considered of importance in the Peace Conference at Versailles. And everything is so delightfully comfortable, cozy and democratic.

Conferences at Meals. The conferences are resumed practically every time two members of the Institute chance to meet on the broad expanse of lawn or the gravel paths of this old college town. By the most animated discussions of the day, the members of the Institute are gathered, three times a day, about the long tables in the Institute's common dining hall.

While the pretty waitresses recruited from farms on the countryside dole out the plain fare, the distinguished diners—some of them in golfing togs and others in white flannels—resume the arguments across-fire of questions with renewed vigor. Every clash of opinion characterized by the utmost friendliness and when an impassioned rejoinder—well, the parties to the debate laugh good naturedly or pass a disquisition on the palatable character of the coffee cake.

Liam and eggs are the pièce de résistance at breakfast. Steak, cooked style, with lots of gravy, is the most substantial dish provided at dinner. At night supper is served, consisting of a salad or a rarebit, topped with old-fashioned apple sauce. And the coffee cake and doughnuts are notable Edith Wharton.

One Harvard professor here has called the Institute of Politics the greatest educational effort ever attempted by any college. On the other hand, a half dozen army officers who did notable things in the service of their country during the war have united in the declaration that it will do more in the long run to prevent another war than the contemplated disarmament of all the great nations.

VERSAILLES TREATY FRANKLY DISCUSSED

Conclusions That Are

ST. LOUIS, FRIDAY, AUG. 12.

More than 100 of America's distinguished university professors, lawyers, publicists, diplomats, editors and financiers, all vastly interested in international problems, are rounding out the second week of their "return to college" here as members of the Institute of Politics. Acquaintances have been generally established that the "students"—many of them gray-headed and stoop-shouldered—are reverting to the customs of their freshman days and conferring nicknames upon one another.

Text of U. S. Invitation to Disarmament Conference

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The text of the United States' formal invitation to Great Britain, France and Japan to attend the disarmament conference in Washington this fall follows:

"The President is deeply gratified at the cordial response to his suggestion that there should be a conference on the subject of limitation of armament, in connection with which the Pacific and Far Eastern questions should also be discussed.

"Productive labor is staggering under an economic burden too heavy to be borne unless the present vast public expenditures are greatly reduced. It is idle to look for stability, or the assurance of social justice, or the security of peace, while wasteful and unproductive outlays deprive effort of its just reward and defeat the reasonable expectation of progress.

"The enormous disarmament in the rivalries of armaments manifestly constitute the greater part of the encumbrance upon enterprise and national prosperity.

"An avoidable or extravagant expense of this nature is not only without economic justification, but is a constant menace to the peace of the world rather than an assurance of its preservation.

"Yet there would seem to be no ground to expect the halting of these increasing outlays unless the Powers most largely concerned find a satisfactory basis for agreement to effect their limitation.

"The time is believed to be opportune for the Powers to approach this subject directly and in conference; and while, in the discussion of limitation of armament, the question of naval armament may naturally have first place, it has been thought best not to exclude questions pertaining to other armament to the end that all practicable measures of relief may have appropriate consideration. It may also be found advisable to formulate proposals by which, in the interest of humanity the use of new agencies of warfare may be suitably controlled.

"It is clear, however, quite clear, that there can be no final assurance of the peace of the world in the absence of the desire for peace, and the prospect of reduction of armaments is not a hopeful one unless this desire finds expression in a practical effort to remove causes of misunderstanding and to seek ground for agreement as to principles and their application. It is the earnest wish of this Government that through an interchange of views with the facilities of a conference it may be possible to find a solution of Pacific and Far Eastern problems, of unquestioned importance at this time, that is, such common understandings with respect to matters which have been and are of international concern as may serve to promote enduring friendship among our peoples.

"It is not the purpose of this Government to attempt to define the scope of the discussion in relation to the Pacific and the Far East, but rather to leave this to be the subject of suggestions to be exchanged before the meetings of the conference in the expectations that the spirit of friendship and a cordial appreciation of the importance of the elimination of sources of controversy will govern the final decision.

"Accordingly, in pursuance of the proposal which has been made and in the light of the gracious indication of its acceptance, the President invites the Government of Great Britain, France and Japan to participate in a conference on the subject of limitation of armament in connection with which Pacific and Far Eastern questions will also be discussed, to be held in Washington on the 11th day of November, 1921."

Text of Note to China.

The note to China was in the same language, except that the detailed discussion of the burden of armaments was omitted and the following was substituted as the concluding paragraph:

"Accordingly, in pursuance of the proposal which has been made, and in the light of the gracious indication of its acceptance, the President invites the Government of the republic of China to participate in the discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern questions in connection with the conference on the subject of limitation of armaments, to be held in Washington on the 11th day of November, 1921."

who are engaged in the consideration of the world's weightiest subject are enjoying the bulleest sort of a vacation, in the very heart of the Berkshires, and at a cost one will argue is not nominal. Lord Bryce, who speaks unofficially for England; His Excellency, Tommaso Tittoni for Italy, and all the other top-notchers of overseas states are here, and the members of the institute are hardly less fortunate.

Board, furnished in the common dining hall, costs only $10 a week. A sleeping room, a study room and a commodious bath in one or another of the college dormitories, costs only $5 a week. To this is added the fee for membership, which is the modest sum of $10 for the entire year. Even the hotels have reduced their rates 25 per cent to induce members. Motor cars are everywhere available, with many a pretty girl acting as chauffeur.

To Have Important Bearing.

None of the "students" at this international "summer school" expects that the peace treaty will be revised. But they emphasize that the influence of what is done here and the conclusions that are reached will have an important bearing upon the future international relations of America and every other country.

When the institute is ended the addresses of the lecturers are to be published in half a dozen volumes and widely circulated. They may be used as text books in many of the larger institutions of learning. For reference purposes they will be invaluable. Then too the professors, the publicists, the army officers, the lawyers of international repute and others are piling up scores of note-books to furnish material for lectures and articles which will help spread to the country's remote quarters information that will start many a person thinking in terms of world-wide importance.

On the night of the day the institute ends, Aug. 27, President Garfield is going to dissipate the one mystery attached to the school. It concerns the name of the man who gave the endowment which made it possible. Usually everybody knows that the institute admits privately that the donor is Bernard M. Baruch, but confirmation won't come officially until the last day.

Baruch is a member of the institute and is expected to visit Williams within a very short time and engage in the discussions. He is a member of the Board of Advisors, along with John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain; Frank K. Polk, former Under Secretary of State; and Thomas W. Lamont, economic adviser at the Peace Conference.

Administration Puts Into Definite Terms Its Proposal for a Conference in Washington.

CO-OPERATION IN EFFORTS PLEDGED

President Sounds Sentiment in Senate in Hour's Conference With Borah on Foreign Relations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Putting into definite terms its proposal for a disarmament conference, the United States yesterday invited the great Powers to unite in "a practical effort to remove the causes of misunderstanding" and so facilitate reduction of the world's enormous outlay for the materials of war.

Informal identic notes of invitation were forwarded to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. The American Government pledged its own unstated co-operation in such an effort and further defined as follows its own conception of the principles involved:

That there can be no hope for peace or stability until the tax burden resulting from heavy armaments has been reduced.

That such a reduction is possible only if troublesome international problems are solved by common consent.

That among these problems the Pacific and Far Eastern questions occupy a position of "unquestioned importance."

That, although there is no intention to dictate the scope of the conference, the discussions should touch upon matters "which have been" of international concern, as well as those now admittedly controversial; and

That the question of naval armaments might well be considered first, though there should be no barrier to a full consideration of armaments of every sort.

Invitation to China.

Coincidentally with the dispatch of the invitations to the four great Powers, China was asked to send a delegation to take part in those discussions of the conference which relate to the Pacific and the Far East.

All five nations thus invited have indicated informally that they would accept, and formal responses are expected to reach Washington within a few days, opening the way for a more detailed preliminary negotiation on the scope of the conference.

In every respect the note of invitation follows the principles previously defined by this Government in its informal conversations with the other Powers, but with particular insistence was attracted by the suggestion that a solution of the Far Eastern situation should include "common understandings with respect to matters which have been and are of international concern."

State Department officials would not interpret the text of the note, but the general assumption here was that under this definition a way would be found to discuss such questions as Yap and Shantung which "have been" of international concern but which Japan now is inclined to regard as closed incidents.

From the start the American Government has held that such subjects ought not to be excluded from an honest effort to reach an adjustment in the Far East, Japan on the other hand has carried her insistence to the point of declaring in her informal acceptance of a place in the conference that she did not expect to discuss subjects or situations which could be regarded as "accomplished facts." Whether such a qualification will be repeated in the formal acceptance of the Tokio Government is a subject of conjecture, but officials here are confident of a satisfactory agreement on that subject before the conference assembles on Nov. 11.

Aside from the hint that naval armaments would logically come first in the consideration of the conference, the formal invitation makes only one suggestion as to the subject matter of the disarmament discussions themselves. That relates to "new agencies of warfare," control of which the United States considers to be in the interest of humanity. Under this heading it is expected special attention will be given to use of gas, dissemination of disease germs over enemy lines and similar questions.

The number of principal delegates to be sent by each participating nation is not suggested in the note, administration officials having found it impossible to secure a consensus of opinion of the Powers on that

EARTH PASSED THROUGH TAIL OF COMET ON AUG. 8

HEIDELBERG, Aug. 12.—Announcement is made at the Koenigsstuhl observatory that the earth passed through the tail of a comet on Aug. 8.

At sunset on Aug. 7, a bright object was observed near the sun by W. W. Campbell, director of Lick Observatory, near San Jose, Cal. It was described as brighter than Venus and was located 3 degrees east and 1 degree south of the sun.

Five persons saw the celestial object, and reports from the observatory indicated that experts there believed it might be the nucleus of a comet. It would appear probable that this identification was correct, in view of the foregoing report from Germany.

SAVING LOBBYING IS A LEGITIMATE BUSINESS

Washington Man Says National Legislation Should Be Watched by Business Men.

Charles J. Columbus, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, with offices in Washington, read a paper on the subject, "Watching National Legislation," at the annual convention of the National Association of Retail Secretaries, at Hotel Statler today.

The speaker told of the work of the men and women engaged in watching legislative measures in Congress, in behalf of various organizations and interests.

"It is a perfectly legitimate undertaking," he said, "provided the representations of the lobbyists are true. National legislation is the first order of business, and should have the attention of business men."

Interest in Federal Legislation.

"What is needed from the business men of America is a personal, direct interest in politics. Do not pay politics but before a man is nominated to office do what you can to secure a candidate with a prospective credit customer, get a first-class report. Don't stop there. Call on the candidate, make it your business to know all about him, because he is going on your payroll just the same as you will be on the payroll of every man in your district. You have a bigger stake in him than you may imagine. He is one of the arbiters of the amount of money that must be paid in taxes by the merchants, his employees and clients. He can regulate you and yours, even to the amount of money that you will be permitted to lay by for old age or your dependents."

"All business firms and individuals should be identified with a national, as well as a local, organization of their trade. Through these channels they should be able to secure accurate information on what is doing legislatively in the Government. If they have business with the Government, they, as individuals, are able to get service from the Government without paying, as some have paid, unnecessarily. I take it, for fees and expense accounts of individuals who are supposed to be able to 'reach' men in Washington."

"My advice to my fellow secretaries at their members is that, whenever such a situation exists, they should make a demand upon the Senator or member for an immediate cleanup of the pretended situation, and if the Senator or member cannot handle it, they, in turn, owe it to themselves and to their fellow citizens to clean up the Senator or member."

Small Groups Successful.

"One of the most serious things that watchers of national legislation contemplate is the growing disposition of small groups in putting over legislation."

"We have the soldier group, farmer group, the labor group, and in the far distant future we may find ourselves legislative of the pretended, as a result of the selfish desire of one or all of these and other groups. This has been the means of developing class legislation."

"I think it is pretty well demonstrated in the liquor question that it had not been for the selfish group interests that manifested themselves, namely, liquor on the one side and beer on the other, there might have been a determination of that question more satisfactory to the public at large, to judge from the ridicule in which the Volstead act is not only held by implication but in fact."

BOY SCOUTS HANGS SELF IN HOME

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 12.—Returning to his room in a lodging house early today, Dr. M. Roberts discovered the body of his 13-year-old son, Charles M. Roberts, hanging to a radiator rod. A note in the boy's pocket, it was addressed to another youth who is camping with the Boy Scouts south of Butte, and is believed by the police to explain the cause of the death, thought to be a case of suicide. The note has been translated.

 I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Against Vivisection.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
VIVISECTION is a thing which everyone should know and be able to state his opinion about. Any person with any reason at all would say that vivisection is the cruelest thing ever practiced in medical science.

We must not forget that animals were put on this earth to be man's food but not for man to torture.

Here are some of the things done to the animals in vivisection: A live dog will be strapped on a table with no anesthetic, but his mouth will be sewed shut; or if an operation on the throat is to be performed, a nail will be put through his windpipe so his cries cannot be heard. In some cases the brain will be cut open and sewed up again so as to use the dog for another experiment—that is, if he lives. In other cases dogs and cats are baked in glass ovens so the doctors and students can see how much heat a dog or cat can stand. It has been said that a dog can live 20 to 30 minutes in heat up to 200 and 300 degrees Fahrenheit. Other dogs are starved for four and five days and then a hole is cut in their neck and in their stomach; then the dog is fed so the doctors can get a gas which comes out of their stomach, for which even the vivisectionists say there is no use.

Doctor after doctor has testified that the systems of dogs and cats, or any other animal, are so utterly unlike those of humans that the mysteries of the human body cannot be solved by the experiments on dumb animals.

Many learned men such as Mark Twain, Bismarck, Henry Ward Beecher, John Bright, Luther Burbank, Thomas Carlyle, Gilbert Chesterton, William James, W. D. Howells, Humboldt, Cardinal Manning, Henry Van Dyke, Stanley, Lord Wolsey, Scott, Bernard Shaw, United States Senator Myers and thousands of other great minds, among them innumerable famed surgeons and doctors, do not believe in vivisection.

Mark Twain is more than a humorist. He was one of the wisest men of his day. And I am going to end this with his arraignment of vivisection and vivisectionists: "The pain which it inflicts upon unconsenting animals is the basis of my enmity toward it, and it is to me, sufficient justification of the enmity, without looking further. I have tried to understand why it should be considered a kind of credit and a handsome thing to belong to a human race that has vivisection in it!"

MARIE GRAVES.

Too Much Anthem

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
 IN answer to a letter signed "An American," who wishes the "Star-Spangled Banner" played after church services, at the close of theatrical performances, at school and everywhere, the same as during the war, I disagree with him. I was a soldier and saw service on the other side. We had the national anthem played at us from planes on the field, on the Y. M. C. A. bands in fact everywhere. We got tired of it. It was overdone. The same would happen here in this country or any place. Keep the anthem for proper time and occasion.
 ALSO AMERICAN.

Noise! Noise!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
"CONSIDERATE" is right. The noise in this city is terrible, and entirely unnecessary. It begins the first thing Sunday morning with the newboys yelling at our windows at 4 a. m. Then the street cars with noise like a boiler factory, the automobiles and motor cycles, cutouts and screaming; the ice peddlers, vegetable peddlers and fruit peddlers and herring children, yelling at the top of their voices. It is deafening and terrible, and there should be a law against them to protect the thousands of people who have to sleep in the daytime and the thousands of invalids.
 The street car company should be forced by law to abolish the noise of their cars; the screaming horns and cutouts should be abolished and the peddlers of every description—bananas, peach, strawberry, watermelon, vegetable, ice, coal, junk and all other peddlers—should be shut up entirely. If they are too lazy to get out of their wagons and show their goods at a certain time every day they certainly should not be allowed to wake everybody in the neighborhood.
 NIGHT FOREMAN.

Leaky Faucets.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
 I NOTICED in your paper the city is wanted to reduce the expense of the city by cutting wages. Why not cut out some of the water inspectors who are supposed to examine the waste through leaky faucets, and don't I have lived in the neighborhood of Page, Hodiament, Hamilton and Wells for four years and in that time only once has an inspector called. He never came in, and at the time I had three faucets leaking. He asked the landlady if there was any trouble and she replied, "No." At present I have four leaking faucets upstairs and one in the laundry—quite a waste of water. Why don't I notify the city? Because I am a renter and afraid I'd be put out.

ST. LOUIS AT SEDALIA.

The excursion of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to the Missouri Centennial celebration at Sedalia today expresses somewhat better than we can express in words the common pride which, city and town and farm alike, we all feel in our State.

As the history of Missouri is romantic and colorful beyond almost anything else to be found in the Union, so the future of Missouri is attractive beyond almost anything else the country affords.

It was by way of the Mississippi that the French explorers went in pirogues and canoes, inseparably associating with this valley the charm of France. It was along the Mississippi that the Spanish and French viceroys passed in the course of governing the far-reaching province of Louisiana.

It was at St. Louis that the Stars and Stripes first flew after the cession to our own country of this great province; and it was from St. Louis that first the fur traders and trappers and then the Lewis and Clark expedition ventured up the Missouri, the latter to make its way to the Pacific.

It was from Missouri that the West was won, and both the Oregon and the Santa Fe trails, over which passed such a pageant as shall never be seen again by land or sea, had their origin in Missouri.

St. Louis was the outfitting point and the market for the men who built up the great Western fur trade. It was the port of origin from which the great river traffic, beginning with the arrival here from Ohio of the first Mississippi River steamboat in 1817, came to flower in the 1850's in such a romance as transportation has nowhere else achieved. Out of that romance came the immortal genius of Mark Twain as truly as out of the golden drama of California came the genius of Bret Harte.

It was from Missouri that the Argonauts set forth on that astonishing analysis of 1849, when history tells us that one man even wheeled a wheelbarrow from Independence, Mo., to San Francisco, while by the Lower Trail alone there were at one time counted as many as a thousand vehicles abandoned by passing caravans on their way to the gold fields! Missouri gave to the West the pathfinder, John O. Fremont. She sent to the Mexican War Doniphan's troopers, than whom there has probably never been known a like host, man for man, since the world began.

It was to St. Louis that John Custer came to tell for the first time of the wonders of Yellowstone Park.

It was through St. Louis that the young Harvard man, Gregg, went to write in the 1830's the "Commerce of the Prairies," the classic of the Santa Fe Trail.

It was to St. Louis that the Sac and Fox Chief Black Hawk was brought in captivity after the Black Hawk War.

Here came Audubon, painting the birds of the West; Washington Irving, enriching the West with his inimitable humor. Here, too, came Daniel Boone, civilizer, but following the wild.

One saw at the hotels of that old St. Louis the slatted pilots who took the steamboats through to Port Benton; Kit Carson, who was to lead our troops across the Sierra Nevada and deliver to us California; Buffalo Bill, who was subsequently to mingle with Kings. Here Pontiac, the red Washington, lies dreaming his everlasting passion for liberty. Here passed the artist Catlin, from whom we were to know the Mandan Sioux, and here greeted the incoming and expectant world those amazing and fascinating myths of the West which made all other parts of the earth seem by comparison dull and dead.

Here, too, what we all felt of the West found expression in that tremendous triumph of civilization, the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

Is it any wonder, then, that wherever we live in Missouri we share alike that pride in our State expressed by the excursion of the Chamber of Commerce to Sedalia on St. Louis day? Is it any wonder that to celebrate the centennial of Missouri's statehood reminds us of our common heritage and stirs our hearts and imaginations? Is it surprising that at such a time we are reminded that this was the State of Mark Twain, whose towering figure is to last through the ages; or that this was the State of Benton, who foresaw the glory of the West; of Grant, who was to end the Civil War; of Pershing, who was to return a thousandfold the kindness and aid of Lafayette? No, it is not any wonder, for the name of Missouri is as imperishable in the history of the great American republic as are imperishable the names and deeds of great men everywhere.

Still, it is to the future that we stand together as Missourians today looking with greatest pride and rejoicing. Missouri is a fast-growing State. Her rivers are coming back. She has great and growing cities. She is out of debt, and has money for roads, for education, for the care of her unfortunate. Her geographical advantage is beginning to tell. It is asserting itself in the great variety of her crops and resources. It is claiming industry because, as transportation costs increase, industry must seek the center of the country. Missouri, too, has an asset of which we think perhaps but little now, but which will be priceless in the years to come; she has the Ozarks, which are to be the great home playground of the middle Mississippi Valley and the adjacent Southwest. They are already coming into the Ozarks in summer from Texas and Oklahoma, as they will come in time from all the great prairie region north, east and west.

So St. Louis day at Sedalia proclaims us all Missourians immensely proud of the past and tremendously expectant of the future.

Hail Missouri!

A NECESSARY SERVICE.

There may be no legal authority for maintaining the Parole Investigation Bureau of the Police Department, as President Miller of the Police Board says, and his order abolishing it may be formally correct. Nevertheless, in view of the character and scope of the bureau's work, the order, we believe, should be reconsidered.

A great part of the bureau's work, Judge Miller of the Criminal Court of Correction explains, has to do with wife and child abandonment. Unless paroled the delinquents must be sent to the workhouse and their wives and children become objects of charity. Without the bureau the parole system could not operate. As it is it is operating well. Last month, for example, the bureau collected $1350 from the earnings of paroled men which was turned over to their families. At present the bureau has 104 families whom it supervises with regular visits.

The suspension of such social service and the inevitable alternative if it is abolished cannot be contemplated without emotion. Law or no law, this department has the sanction of long custom and the moral support of every right-thinking man and woman. President Miller of the Police Board might be within the letter of the law in destroying this fine, indispensable agency, but such action would be an affront to the city and cruelly wrong to many defenseless families.

What will be the state of the world when we all have automobiles and Ford and Rockefeller have all the money?

THE DEADLY DEBUTANTE.

A burglar upon entering a Minneapolis home in the course of practicing his profession, was put upon and nearly killed by a debutante armed with a golf club. He escaped, the news account tells us, bearing on his head numerous marks of a 14-ounce brassie, wielded by a strong and experienced hand. When it is remembered that these tokens were presented to him despite his strenuous resistance, and in the dark, we can easily imagine what would have been his fate had the young lady enjoyed the privilege of feeling him up.

This incident, depressing as it may be to those gentry who depend upon the piquant offices of the "Jimmy" for a livelihood, brings home the new type of girl that is with us. Not hers, the shrill squeal and fainting fit which of yore greeted alike the appearance of a burglar or a mouse! No, indeed! This is another generation. Beware of it, burglars, masochists, mice and other vermin!

1921—MISSOURI—1921.

ARMOR.

I HAVE made a gown for me,
 To shield me from reality,
 (The cruel wind, so bitter cold).
 My gown is made of threads of gold,
 And the god of dreams has taught
 All the patterns I have wrought.
 Tears of pearl the throat engem,
 And cunningly, from neck to hem,
 In the fabric I have sewn Poppies red, by Lethe grown.
 (It is most meet to deck my dress
 With blossoms of forgetfulness!)
 I throw the world, and up and down,
 Fearless of all, I wear my gown,
 And I pray that I shall die
 The day when I must lay it by.

JULIA CLOPTON CRESAP.

Sir: Isn't it strange that most folks will spend a couple of dollars for a ticket to an evening's entertainment, something diverting or even thrilling while, yet cannot see a volume of poems at half the price, with the years to come to enjoy them in?

If one were to think of one of those exquisite old sisters sitting watching the sunset of the other's life, in Orrick John's "Black Branches," who says:
 "I have seen 12 magnificent cats, male and female, die without a moan."
 If one were to pick out the most glittering nuggets, say of a play like John's "Eclipses," the "tired business man" might find points of contact and exclaim, "That's rich. That's delicious!" and eventually drift into talking philosophy.

Snatches from dialogue in a shell hole:
 The Beggar:
 I have asked God for two yards of this soil. It is the first begging I have done here. Did you know I used to live in luxury? I only went out to beg on fine days.
 The Poet:
 I presuppose nothing about the end of my flesh, having known nothing of its beginning.

It fascinates me like a young puppy. Along with the light in such poems is the shade, and for the shade we are truly more grateful. But the poet has no press agent. His lack of publicity is one of those ironies that help make life the joke it is. "Life a joke" a reader asks. She laughs at us. "Blasphemy!" whispers another. Is a joke such a bad thing, then? Really, is it not funny?

From all those little blasé godlets which wish to be delivered, O, Sir Oracle, deliver us! Do it now. Give us air.

The American Sugar Refining Co. has passed the quarterly dividend of 1 1/2 per cent on the capital common stock, believed to be the first time in the company's 30 years' history that the dividend has been suspended. However, before you shed any tears recall that there was a considerable time not so long ago when it was no use asking anyone to pass the sugar.

Sir—I have read your column with much interest during my brief stay here and regret that my home papers in Los Angeles do not see fit to give space to such a column as yours with local color in every line. The Times and Examiner prefer imported syndication as attractions.
 P. H. KATRON.

Gov. Len Small writes: "Daylight must be admitted to the corrupt channels through which this conspiracy has flown."
 Why not "has flown"?

The decline of the movies need have no terrors for young men doing good-looking parts. There is always something for handsome dogs.

THESE, TOO, O LORD!

From females raucously shrieking for deliverance from men who on no account could be lured within a mile of them; from windy Antitoxins braying "plagiarist" at people who never dreamed of denying it; from girls who call men "boys," and from men whose intellectual stature deserves the term; from insolent hogs who tell their employees how to dress; from slanderous calumniators who say that I am a lawyer or a doctor; from puerile joke-carpeters who build creaking limericks on the mechanical circumstance of abbreviation; from idle noddies who waste their time and soil good paper with this blather when they should be improving their minds with Marcus Aurelius, Machiavelli and Henry Adams; from newspapers who print "the truth about Russia" on their first pages and deny that it is the truth on their editorial pages; from rubber-stamp minds that accept the theory that democracy is the best system of government without studying the matter; from pacifists, flag wavers, and from the doctrine of infant damnation; from sour spinsters, sugary spinsters and from girl brides; from romantic hoolies who think I could make any woman happy, or that any would fall to make me miserable; from political pettifoggers like Senator Lodge; from an economic system that awards millions to the mathematical brain and starvation to the artistic brain; from girls who break into print with grammatical errors and bawl about it when corrected; in fact from the whole dismal potter, save my golf sticks, my pipe and the one female who is comely, witty and has no designs upon my liberty, may the indulgent Providence which spares poison ivy, waste contributors and the United States Senate deliver and save me.
 PHILLO.

Pray, deliver us from any more—
 Boys who flirt with you in the tramways when you are standing and they are seated;
 From the poor men in the aisle seats of tramways who cannot stand the sun in their eyes and considerately pull down the shade, taking it for granted you do not care to see what is transpiring outside;
 From boys who never wash their hands, but expect you to hold them, nevertheless;
 From boys who, not satisfied with the aforementioned, insist on taking your chin between their hands, when they ought to hug a bar of mechanic's soap;

From any more people like Pax, who go about the world with a chip on their shoulder daring people to print their "trick,"
 From boys who never use a tooth brush on their dining-room furniture;
 From any more of these very young "would be" overseas fellows who speak French so fluently without first discovering what you know about it;

From anybody in particular who mutilates our dear old "United States language" by using French phrases;
 From boys who, when you try to speak intelligently to them, murmur, "Pretty blue eyes!"
 From all men creatures in general, including the one and only ones, shades of the illustrious Helene, deliver us! DESIRE P. LARICQUE.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading public newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

HENRY FORD'S RAILROAD RATE.

From the New York World.
 IN the automobile business Henry Ford has prices as much as he likes without a protest, and if he were in grocery business, the business or any other industry not yet taken over by the Government there would be nothing to encourage for all the slashing he could do. The public needs lower prices. It appears that he could haul stone from Sibley in Detroit at a rate 20 per cent less than the rate in vogue. All he asked was permission to do it. The commission raises its hands in horror at a proposition at once so illegal and so dangerous to the public realm. The Detroit & Ironport Railroad has to content itself with a reduction of 1 cent a month in order that everybody concerned may have a chance to adjust schedules and get on from under. According to the theory upon which this ruling is based, the country should be compelled to charge as much for every unit of transportation as the least efficient, least used and most thoroughly plundered are compelled to charge in order to make a profit. The plan combines all the advantages of private ownership, the stockholders with none of the advantages to the public that might result from competition.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

From the Chicago Tribune.
 A MAN like Curson, who was Viceroy of India and had 400,000,000 Indians prostrate before him, has more sympathy with a military empire than with a democratic republic. A good long war between us and the Japanese would weaken us both. At the same time, Great Britain would be selling her goods to both sides. Every household should keep on hand Carron oil, a mixture of equal parts of lime and linseed oil. It is a time honored remedy for burns.

In the absence of sterilized gauze or lint, old linen, cheesecloth, flour and salt bags that have been washed sweet, clean and soft are excellent for these emergencies.

Is a good plan to cut such materials into squares, six, and keep it in hand.

When no antiseptics of any character are available, hot salt solution (one teaspoonful of table salt to pint of boiled water) proves a valuable remedy.

An injury such as a wound should be thoroughly cleansed with the solution, then covered with compresses that have been wrung out of the hot salt water, and kept in place with a clean bandage.

MORE THAN AN ARCHITECT
 THE adage, "Every man is the architect of his own fortune," states only part of the truth. The architect is the planner of the structure. But they are the beginning.

When the architect has completed his work, the builder must take plans and work them out. And without his materials and labor, the best plans ever drawn would be useless.

It is natural for every man to plan his own future, though few plan their lives wisely, or formulate plans that can be worked out.

But more planning is only the start of the work.

And if you are only a planner and not a builder, the dreams you have reared of a happy and prosperous future will never be realized.

FORTUNE BUILDING. Like house building, is liable to delays, discouragements, to interruption by the elements, to all the annoyances and irritations which plague disagreeable but highly important part in what we call life.

Like as not your building will be on swimmingly for a time—everything according to plan, and then suddenly destroyed by some unforeseen disaster.

Then, if you are a real builder, you will fall patiently to work, construct it again, undismayed, what happened, and not disturbed by the likelihood that it may happen again.

It was the patience and courage of a spider which repeatedly reconstructed its demolished web taught Robert Bruce not to despair in misfortune.

When you plan a career, plan well. Don't be afraid to plan on a great scale, no matter how great cost of time and labor is involved.

Then throw your whole heart into the building, thinking of luck, or of necessary recreation while you toil.

If you have planned well, build well, your structure will stand, to provide you with shelter and protection through the years. But planning is not enough. You must be more than your own architect. You must be your own builder. (Copyright, 1921, by John Blake.)

EVERYONE should have a hand-first-aid kit with which to handle the thousand and one accidents that are occurring here and there everywhere. For it is of first aid treatment, that serious, fatal, results are prevented.

Place in a box within convenient reach the following articles:

Half a dozen bandages, varying from 1 to 4 inches in width.
 A spool of adhesive plaster (two inches wide).
 A roll of absorbent cotton.

A package of sterilized gauze.
 A pair of scissors.
 A hairbrush.
 A bottle of liquid soap (tincture of green soap is the best).
 A glass vial containing 1 do. bicloride of mercury tablets, 1000 str.

Small bottle of phenol solution.
 A bottle of carbolic vaseline.
 A package of bicarbonate of soda.
 A package of boracic acid.
 A 2-ounce bottle of tincture.

Turpentine liniment is a valuable remedy for ordinary burns and that should be on every kit.

This liniment can easily be made by melting over a low temperature 13 ounces of resin, corat—melting as quickly as possible, then add 8 ounces of oil of turpentine until a smooth mixture results.

A Short Story in Five Daily Installments.

FIFTH INSTALLMENT.

In an instant Paul was himself. "You'll do nothing of the sort," he cried. "Why, man, you'll spoil the whole thing. I've worked this out alone, and if the police hear of it they'll notify all the papers and I'll have no story. Burns won't give me that job, and I'll be hungry again."

"True! I forgot that fat-headed devil of an editor. Well, you say the word and nobody won't know nothing from us. Hey, boys?"

"Sure not," the other men agreed. This had been one of their kind; he had been against it and fighting for his own, therefore they knew how to sympathize. But Paul had been seized with terror lest his story might get away from him, therefore he had been a hasty good-by and sped uptown. His feet could not carry him swiftly enough.

Burns greeted him sourly when he burst into the editorial sanctum. It was not yet 24 hours since he had sent this fellow away with instructions not to return.

"Are you back again?" he snarled. "I heard about your assaulting Wells down at the City Hall. Don't try it on me or I'll have you pinched."

Paul laughed lightly. "I don't have to fight for my rights any more."

"Indeed! What are you grinning about?" Have you found who that girl is?"

"I have."

"What?" Burns' jaw dropped limply; he leaned forward in his chair.

"Yes, sir! I've identified her."

"The fat man was at first incredulous, then suspicious. 'Don't try any tricks on me,' he cried, warningly. 'Don't try to put anything over.'"

Her name is Mabel Wilkes. She is the daughter of Captain Wilkes, of Highland, Ontario. She was a country dressmaker and lived with her people at that place. Her trunk is down at the Grand Trunk depot with the rest of her clothes in it, together with the mate to the mitten she had when she killed herself. I went through the trunk with the baggage master, name Corrigan. Here's the key which I got from her purse at the Coroner's office."

Burns fixed his round eyes upon the key, then he shifted them slowly to Anderson's face. "Why—why—this is amazing! I—I—"

He cleared his throat nervously. "How do you discover all this? Who told you?"

"Nobody told me. I reasoned it out."

"But how—Good Lord! Am I dreaming?"

"I'm a good newspaper man. I've been telling you that every day. Maybe you'll believe me now."

Burns made no reply. Instead, he pushed a button and, entering, pausing at the sight of Anderson. Giving the latter no time for words, Mr. Burns issued his instructions. On the instant he was the trained newspaper man again, cheating the clock dial and trimming minutes; his words were sharp and decisive.

"That suicide story has broken big and we've got a scoop. Anderson has identified her. Take the first G. T. train for Highland, Ontario, and find her father, Capt. Wilkes. Wire me a full story about the girl Mabel, private life, history, everything. Take plenty of space. Have it in by midnight. That's the word. I'll be waiting."

"Wells' eyes were round, too; they were glued upon Paul with a hypnotic stare, but he managed to answer: "Yes, sir!" He was no longer grinning.

"Now, Anderson," the editor snapped, "get downstairs and see if you can write the story. Pile it on thick—it's a corker."

"Very good, sir, but I'd like a little money," that elated youth demanded, boldly. "Just advance me $50, will you? Remember, I'm on top salary."

Burns made a wry face. "I'll send a check down to you," he promised, "but get at that story and make it a good one or I'll fire you tonight."

Anderson got. He found a desk and began to write feverishly. A half hour later he read what he had written and tore it up. Another half hour and he repeated the performance. Three times he wrote the tale and destroyed it; then paused, realizing blankly that as a newspaper story it was impossible. Every atom of interest surrounding the suicide of the girl grew out of his own efforts to solve the mystery. Nothing had happened, no new clues had been uncovered, no one had been implicated in the girl's death, there was no crime. It was a tale of Paul Anderson's deductions, nothing more, and it had no newspaper value. He found he had written about himself instead of about the girl.

He began again, this time laboriously eliminating himself, and when he had finished his story it was perhaps the poorest journalistic effort ever written.

Upon lagging feet he bore the copy to Burns' office. But the editor gave him no time for explanation demanding, fiercely:

"Where's that check I sent you?"

"Here it is." The youth handed it to him. "Make a mistake?"

"I certainly did," Burns tore up the check before saying: "Now you get out, you bum, and stay out, or take the consequences."

"Get out? What for?"

"You know what for," Burns was quivering with rage. "You ran a good bluff and you nearly put it over; but I don't want to advertise myself as a jackass, so I shan't have you pinched unless you come back."

"Come back? I intend to stay. What's the matter?"

"I had an idea you were flourishing," stormed the editor, so I went down to the G. T. depot, and there's no trunk of the sort there; Corrigan never saw you or anybody like you. Say, why didn't you walk out when you got that check? What made you come back?"

Anderson began to laugh softly. "Good old Corrigan! He's all right, isn't he? Well, he gets half of that check when you rewrite it, if I don't laugh myself to death before I get to the bank."

"What if you mean?" Burns was impressed by the other's confidence.

"Nothing, except that I've found one square man in this village. One square guy is a pretty big percentage in a town the size of Buffalo. Corrigan wouldn't let you see the depot if I wasn't along. Put on your coat and come along with me—yes, and bring a couple of hired men if it will make you feel any better."

At the depot he called the baggage-master to him and said:

"Mr. Corrigan, this is Mr. Burns, the city editor of The Intelligencer."

"That's what he told me," grinned the Irishman, utterly ignoring the young editor; "but you didn't give him no references, and I wouldn't take a chance."

Burns maintained a dignified silence; he said little even when the contents of the trunk were displayed to him. Nor did he open his mouth on the way back to the office. But when he was seated at his desk and had read Anderson's copy he spoke.

"This is the rottenest story ever turned in at this office," said he. "I know it is," Paul agreed, frankly, then explained his difficulty in writing it.

"I'll do it myself," Burns told him. "Now, you go home and report tomorrow."

VERY tired but a very happy young man routed out the landlady of a cheap boarding house that night and hugged her like a bear, explaining joyously that he had done a great big thing. He waited her down the hall and back while she clutched wildly at her flapping flannel wrapper and besought him to think of her other boarders. He waited her out of her bedroom slippers, gave her a smacking kiss on her wrinkled cheek, then left her, breathless and scandalized, but all affluter.

The city had read the story when Anderson awoke the next morning. The Intelligencer had made a clean "beat," and Burns had played up the story tremendously, hence it was with jumping pulses that Paul scanned the front page of that journal. The further he read, however, the more he realized that the story was a triumph, and he was more than a little proud of himself.

The history of Mabel Wilkes, under the magic touch of Burns, had, to be sure, become a wonderful, tragic story; but nowhere in it was mention made of Paul Anderson. His cleverness and the perseverance of The Buffalo Intelligencer was extolled, but that was all. When he had concluded reading the article he read his own name in big, black type; he read head-lines that told of a starving boy sent out on a hopeless assignment as a cruel joke; he read the story as it really occurred, only told in the third person by an author who was neither ashamed nor afraid to give where it was due. The egotistical pretense of The Buffalo Intelligencer was torn to shreds and ridicule was heaped upon its editor. Paul read nervously, breathlessly, until Wells interrupted him.

"I'm to blame for this," said he. "I couldn't stand it any more. I read it. When I got in this morning and saw what that fat imbecile had done to you I tipped the true facts off to the others—all of the facts I knew. They got the rest from Corrigan, down at the Grand Trunk depot. Of course this means my job, if the old man finds it out; but I don't give a damn."

As yet Anderson was too dazed

The Whispering Woman

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

AMAN there was, and a wife, a happy pair indeed. They had lived, laughed and loved together for many a day and believed much in each other. They were well-mated, and life seemed large and beautiful. Success came to him, and they grew, with the future even more bright.

"Ah! how happy I am," thought the woman many a time. When he held her in his arms and greeted her on his return from the work-a-day world. Came the day in the big city when she, the whispering one, Chanced to see a man in a public place with a woman. They were earnestly talking, and seemed much interested. With a healthy green she watched each move they made. And noted for future use The color of the woman's gown and her manner.

All, all were registered on the mind of her who lived and thrived on the sight. She lingered long over her tea-cup in order that she might lose nothing.

Of the story she planned to tell, and lost no time. Soon, soon she came to the home of the happy one. Drew her chair close, and whispered the tale of her own life. "That I tell you of my faithlessness," And then in hissing whispers the serpent-like one Told her tale and added overmuch as dear to her heart as life.

She spared not, but pierced the heart of the trusting one As with a thousand arrows. He found her in tears—explained the matter with unreasonableness and misery.

"Twas about his work the visitor had come. But the poisoned words of the whispering woman Had entered and with it doubt. Again another and then another tale she came to tell with equal concern. And the mind of the wife became clogged with unreasonable-ness and misery.

They parted—these two had been so close. And she, the cruel one, went forth in the quest of another fruitful field.

Came the day, however, when truth, though crushed to earth, did rise. And the wife found he whom she had trusted had not deceived. That there was no other in his heart or mind. No other but she—the wife of his heart and soul. And the one who told it, as it should be, was a whispering woman.

One by one each word she knew her found her out. For she carried nothing but evil in her wake.

The Young Heron Learns Many Things.

Blessed is the tender heart That makes of sympathy an art.

—Old Mother Nature.

PETER RABBIT and Sammy Jay were happy, happier than they had been for a long time, as they watched Farmer Brown's boy tramp across the Green Meadow toward home carrying the young Heron wrapped in his coat.

"It is all right now," cried Peter. "I know Farmer Brown's boy would get him out of that dreadful trap. You ought to feel good all over. Sammy Jay, to think that you succeeded in saving that young Heron's life. But for you he would have been it sooner or later. No one but you could have brought Farmer Brown's boy over to this swamp. That Heron ought to be thankful to you all his life."

"And to you, too, Peter," replied Sammy Jay. "But for you I wouldn't have known about him. Then, too, you led Reddy Fox away from him. I guess he owes as much to you as to me. I wonder what Farmer Brown's boy will do with him. I think I will fly up to Farmer Brown's dooryard and see what happens."

Rather wistfully Peter watched Sammy Jay fly away. Then he turned to see if the way was clear back to the Dear Old Briar-patch. Farmer Brown's boy was trudging across the Green Meadows and Peter decided that this was the safest time possible for him to get home. So away he went for the Dear Old Briar-patch, lippety-lippety-lip, as fast as he could, to tell little Mrs. Peter about the things that had happened down in the swamp by the Big River.

Meanwhile the poor young Heron was shaking all over from fright. He was held fast by one of the giants he had been taught were his most dangerous and dreadful enemies and was being taken where he knew not where. His foot, which had been held so long in the jaws of the cruel trap, ached dreadfully. But that was nothing to the fear in his heart.

At last the long journey ended. It was a long journey to the end. The young Heron. It ended at Farmer Brown's barn. Of course, the young Heron never had been in a building before and it seemed like a terrible cave. Farmer Brown's boy put him down on his back very carefully and gently, keeping the coat around him in such a way that his wings could not be used. There was nothing he the jaws of that trap with your foot," said he softly: "Otherwise I am afraid the bones would have been crushed so that you would have lost that foot."

Gently he bathed that wounded foot in the warm water into which he had poured something from a bottle. It was something to make the hurt foot wholly clean. Then he covered it with an ointment and carefully wound a strip of cloth around it, tying it in such a way that there were no ends for the young Heron to pick at.

By this time, somehow, the young Heron was getting over his dreadful fear. This two-legged giant was very gentle. The warm water and the ointment already had taken away some of the ache from that foot. Perhaps this giant wasn't an enemy after all, but a friend. The coat was untied and he was taken into a little room, and there he was gently placed on the floor on his one sound foot. He was free in that little room. He stood on one foot and blinked at Farmer Brown's boy. He was learning many things, chief among them that there are tender hearts even among the two-legged giants called men.

Uses for Old Newspapers

WHEN working at the sink, washing dishes, etc., or at the tub doing the family washing, newspapers are a better protection than an apron and they save washing.

When cleaning the stove after cooking, rub with moistened newspaper to remove grease, then polish with dry newspaper.

Save newspapers for moving day, and wrap crockery, silver and bric-a-brac thickly with it to prevent breakage. Use it to line packing boxes that are to contain clothing, linen or books. Fads of newspaper will protect books in packing.

Spread papers on floor when removing ashes or polishing the stove. Make a rug of several thicknesses of newspapers stitched together to place in front of stove while cooking. It will save scrubbing.

Wrap furs and woolen articles in newspapers to keep away moths.

Throw pieces of newspaper into a basin of water. Squeeze out and scatter over rugs and carpets before sweeping. It will avoid dust.

When sending articles away wrap in several thicknesses of newspaper before putting on outside wrapper.

Women now own nearly one-third of the total outstanding stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad, while numerically they are almost half of the stockholders.

Stories Told by the Great Teacher

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.

THE SOWER.

THE story of "The Sower" is found in Matthew XIII, 3-10 and 18-23. It is a great story, illustrating the whole of our human life from the dawn of reason to the "last scene of all that ends our strange, eventful history."

We are all sowers, whether we want to be or not, and according to our sowing must be our reaping. We get what is "coming to us," every time. Nowhere in the infinite universe is there anything accidental or fortuitous. Whatever comes to us comes as a natural, legitimate, inevitable consequence of our action.

Men and nations have been sowing for we know not how many thousands of years, with the results that are given us in the Book of History. These results are not as encouraging as they ought to have been, and in the Story of the Sower Jesus tells us why.

The explanation is found in verse 23: "And that which was sown upon the good ground is he that HEAR-ETH the word, and UNDERSTAND-ETH it, who verily beareth fruit, and bringeth forth some thirty, some sixty, some a hundred fold."

It is TRUTH that saves us. It is Truth planted in the mind and heart of man, like the seed in the soil, that gives us the grand harvest called civilization. But just as seeds must have a certain depth and quality of soil before it can take root and grow up to the abundant harvest so TRUTH must have its chance—must be aided by the proper conditions—in order to do its perfect work among us.

The first condition is that we shall HEAR it, for if we never hear of it, it can, of course, have no effect upon us. And in the second place, we must UNDERSTAND it. If we fail to understand it we may as well not hear it to begin with.

And this is precisely what was happening in all our Teacher's day. Truth, like seed falling on a rocky ledge, found no entrance into men's minds. And such being the case, men failed to understand the truth, since it is impossible to comprehend that which we do not even apprehend—to get the arms of the mind around that which has not as yet so much as entered the mind.

And what was true in Jesus' time is true today. Truth is on the outside of us. The housewife, in order to have her bread rise, must put the yeast IN THE DOUGH, not on a table. So truth, in order to do us good, must be within us, a thoroughly understood and deeply venerated thing, a power in our hearts, the master force in all our thinking and in all our doing.

To know the truth simply as somebody else has told you of it, or as it is said somebody knew it ages ago, is not to know it at all. Such truth is a very faint echo, not the real voice; it is dim shadow, not the old, eternal substance.

To know the truth, to understand it, to love it, to live for it—THAT is what the Great Teacher wanted of us. His word was, "Have ye in yourselves"—the great Saving Truth which makes us free from the forces which would belittle and degrade us, which would weaken our manhood and prevent the proper development of our larger and better selves.

If you will read and reread the story of the "Sower" in the light of the thought I have tried to outline here, I am sure it will take on for you a new interest.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

IN MOVIE LAND.

They're primitive and passionate, the people of the screen. Their loves are always violent, their hatreds cold and keen. The hero always gets the girl that he sets out to wed. Although to do it he must kill her male relations dead. The girl who aims to make a man the partner of her life, succeeds, regardless of the fact that he may have a wife. They do, as you are sure they will, exactly as they're planned. "Go to it," is the only law that's known in Movie Land.

A burglar seeks to rob a flat; he's shot clear through the head. And you legitimately expect that he is rather dead. But no! They pick his body up and throw it through the door. And he goes out and robs a flat upon another floor. One killing can't deter a man from perpetrating crimes; To kill a crook in Movie Land, you kill him seven times. And even then he may appear in jumper and blue jeans. If so be that the drama ends in truly rural scenes.

If you perhaps would like to see how kings of finance live, Or how a wronged, deserted maid can suffer and forgive, If mighty passions thrill your soul or horror stirs your heart, Or how an earnest-faced young man can perish for his art, Forsake your world of sordid facts, and spend an hour or two Where action is not limited by what folks really do. Though actualities they shun, they certainly act grand! And things are done that can't be done, in dear old Movie Land!

They were in the midst of the most thrilling part of "The Treasure of Mystery Island."

"Say what you will, there is one thing about the silent drama that is particularly fine," said the old man, a lover of the picture plays.

"And that is—?"

"The hero can't make the villain eat his words."—Cartoon Magazine.

Business Proposition.

She—Since our engagement is off, I shall return your diamond ring. He—Yes, and as diamonds have dropped 20 per cent since you've had it, you might add a check for the difference.—Boston Transcript.

Incessant.

"Madge has a pretty mouth." "A mere incident." "Wrong! Incidents are frequently closed."—Boston Transcript.

Lucky Dog.

"The only friend Withers has in the whole wide world is his dog." "Yes, and it is beginning to tell on him."

"What, on Withers?" "No, on his dog."—Life.

That's True.

Bacon—"I sent a dollar to the fellow who advertised to tell how to take out wrinkles in the face. Egbert—And did he tell you?" Bacon—He did. He said to walk out in the open air at least once a day and the wrinkles would go out with me.—Tonkers Statesman.

In the Dark.

"I told him he mustn't see me any more." "What did he do then?" "Switched off the lights."—Life.

Before and After.

Before entering office, public officials are sworn in. Before leaving, they are cursed out.—Life.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—A dial statement explaining the a istration tax revision program issued today at the White Hou declares that "the aim was to establish methods that would the needed revenue within a sonable certainty, make colle sure and time expensive and pu ly adjust the burden amon classes of the community."
"It is felt that highly imp progress has been made along lines," the statement says, add
"There has been no effort leave the rich of their share of dens, but rather to insure the class will be left an avenue scape from these. A casual an of the proposals show that wha be described as 'the rich
'taxes' will produce about $1 400,000, while the balance w distributed over the entire co nity, rich and poor.
Probable Effect of Lower Ra
The reduction to 22 per cent the highest income and 10 per brackets is expected by the co to produce actually more re from these sources than do the ent much higher rates. The p prevent transactions which involve application of the high and thus keep taxes away fro Government. Also, they money into tax-free securities, distress of business; and the
to fraud and evasions.
"Experience has shown, in ing with the excess profits that where there is periodic this tax is pyramided, multi the burden of the consumer, a during speculation and waste, has been largely responsible f intense speculation that follow war. It is an unsatisfactory which to base revenue estimat case. (a product of the revenue tremely variable and in the p epoch of reduced earnings it utterly fail to produce the a needed.
"In increasing the tax on co earnings, an exemption is on those having earnings of $2 less—the poor man's corpo
The number that would thus empted would exceed 100,000.

transportation taxes and subse of manufacturers' taxes for t called "nuisance" levies, the ment concluded:
"The whole tax reform pr
contemplates freeing busine what have been found paralys exasperating restrictions eno ing to the utmost, the resump enterprise, and, business, res every possible incentive to a able to pay."

Repeal of the excess tax cent on every 20 cents of val decided upon today by the and Means Committee, whic a flat license tax of $10.00 tallies of soft drinks and to manufacturers' tax on cerea crises at 12 cents a gallon in of the present manufacturers'
15 per cent on the sale price.
Having practically complet vision of the levy sections of t law yesterday, majority mem
the House Ways and Means Co tee expected to finish work on bill today so as to have a co draft ready for consideration.
